Rutt Receives Delp Award, Landis Has Century Farm

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 21st annual Lancaster County agriculture-industry banquet brought together 450 supporters for agriculture Tuesday evening to present the county's highest honorary agriculture award, recognize the 128th century farm, and develop relationships among agriculture and industry business people.

Sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, under the direction of James Shirk, ag services manager, and the chamber's agricultural committee, this event serves more and more to highlight agriculture's immense role in the local economy.

Again, the prestigious award, named in honor of ag industrialist and philanthropist George C. Delp, was presented to a person who has made a significant personal contribution to the agriculture community. This year's recipient is Kenneth Rutt, Edgefield Farms, Quarryville.

Rutt was one of the driving forces behind the development of the chamber's agriculture services department, the only full time service department in the nation. He is the past president of the Master Farmer's Association and serves on the Agway and Farmers First Bank boards of directors. A trustee of the Lancaster County 4-H development fund, Rutt has also been active in the state farmland protection board.

To make more use of his knowledge of agriculture, Rutt has been a consultant to farmers in Nigeria, helping to develop the first dairy farm and processing facility in this African country.

Rutt and his wife Connie are active in the Mechanics Grove Church of the Brethern, and they have three grown children.

In 1976 the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture initiated the century farm award to emphasize the contribution of the family farm to the Commonwealth. Since that time, 127 farms and farm families have received the award in Lancaster County. Jay Landis, Pequea, in Martic Township, became number 128. Landis is the great grandson of Aldus Erb,

Secretary Hayes Honors Egg Quality Efforts

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. on Tuesday in the state Capitol in Harrisburg recognized a representative group from the retail sector of the state's egg industry for its quality and safety cooperative efforts.

For the industry, the publicity about how egg producers and retailers have been cooperating under the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP) is welcomed.

Especially since the heaviest consumption of eggs occurs from Thanksgiving through New Year's Day, the timing of the event worked well to provide news gathering media crews with pre-Thanksgiving stories that hopefully can build consumer awareness of the egg quality program the Pennsylvania industry and government has jointly created.

It is also hoped that the program will build consumer confidence and selectivity for those quality program labeled eggs.

As the entire agricultural industry should know, public perceptions of quality are key to maintaining, and critical to improving, demand.

Now more than several years ago, Pennsylvania had been involved in problems arising from eggs people ate in restaurants, institutional food service, and other retail outlets mostly in large cities and surounding states.

Pennsylvania is a major producer of eggs for consumption and use in food processing and manufacture in the Northeast.

According to Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, there were 5.65 billion eggs produced in Pennsylvania in 1995, valued at $264,843,000. Nationally, the state ranks third for egg production.

The problems Pennsylvania egg producers and packers faced was

Despite Season's Heat, Drought, Turkey Producers Fortunate

David and Karen Keller, who care for 26,000 toms under contract for Wampler Foods, remember the stultifying summer of 1995 when dangerous levels of heat destroyed 5 percent of their flock. Karen, left, holds a poult at about a week and a half old. David holds a bird that was 15 weeks, five days old.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Even the little things that happen in a turkey growing season can leave growers a lot to be thankful for.

David and Karen Keller, who care for 26,000 toms under contract for Wampler Foods, remember the stultifying summer of 1995, when dangerous levels of heat destroyed 5 percent of their flock.

They were fortunate, noted David, because at the time he knew of other growers that lost half of their flocks.

"It was a total disaster," said Keller.

However, this Thanksgiving, they have a lot to be thankful for. One night in July, temperatures hovered at 95 degrees — at 9 o'clock at night. It was only their careful scrutiny of the flock and working to keep the toms cool that kept losses at 1 percent — losses they must still cover themselves.

"When this happens, Wampler loses and the grower loses," David Keller told Lancaster Farming at a recent interview at his farm, before Thanksgiving. "You share it. It's a gamble, like putting in a crop."

Adams County also suffered its share of field losses from this year of drought. For soybean growers, it was especially damaging. "They'll only yield half if they yielded that," Keller said, who grows 10 acres of beans.

But the farm's source of water never dried up and was ample to carry the flock over to harvest time, noted Karen, who works part-time for the local United Parcel Service office. The birds need close to 3,000 gallons a day.

The Kellers farm 20 acres (about 10 acres are tilled) on their turkey farm near Gettysburg. The farm was parceled out from David's father, Joseph's, dairy farm across the road.

David, who grew up on the dairy farm, worked in a machine shop for a few years. After work with the machine shop, Keller did land-

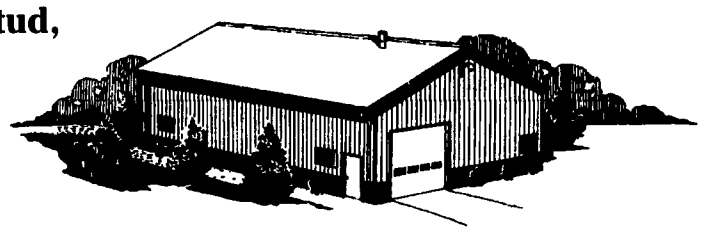
The Building you want. The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

OPINION

Good Dinner For Thanksgiving And Every Day

Traditionally, Thanksgiving has been a time for families and friends across the nation to gather together, give thanks for all that we share, and usher in the holiday season. Though the way we celebrate Thanksgiving differs from family to family and region to region, one part of the tradition remains constant: the bountiful feasts that are prepared in homes throughout the country.

Without the hard work and ingenuity of America's farmers, our traditional feasts would not be possible. Food starts with the farmer. Daniel Webster (1782-1852) said in a speech about agriculture, "When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers therefore are the founders of human civilization."

Turkey is a popular dish at Thanksgiving. But so are all other meats. Breads and rolls, vegetables, potatoes, cranberries, and wine are included on the menu too. Whatever you had for your Thanksgiving meal last Thursday, remember all the food came from the farm. Be thankful for farmers who take the risks of weather and markets to see to it that you have not only a good Thanksgiving dinner but a good dinner every day of the year.

A special message to the Minnesota Milk Producers Association — You don't throw something out, unless you have something better to replace it with.

Also, to the U.S. Senators, U.S. Congressmen, and some farm organizations that urged the dairy industry to become deregulated — The potential problems that exist today are only part of the problems that would be created with complete deregulation. The formula used by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has been criticized by various people for many years and certainly the formula has been further scrutinized during the last year as a result of the serious decline in milk prices paid to dairy farmers all across the United States. (Example: federal order #2 Blend Price in August 1997 dipped to the 1979 level — August 1979, $12.33 per cwt.; August 1997, $12.22 per cwt.)

An additional cloud appeared over the dairy farmers' financial horizon on November 3, when Judge David Doty of the fourth Division of the Federal Distriact Court in Minnesota ruled in favor of the Minnesota Milk Producers, et. al. and disallowed the USDA from using the Class I transportation differentials as a method of determining the value of Class I (fluid) milk in most of the federal milk marketing orders.

While several people are dissatisfied with various differentials in the federal milk marketing orders, you certainly do not advocate a move such as the complaint in front of Judge Doty, unless a better plan is in hand.

Further complicating the issue was the fact that Doty's order was signed on November 3, but was not received by the USDA until November 5. This was done at a critical time, because many of the administrators in the federal orders start compiling their pay

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Prevent Thrush

Thrush is a frequent and often recurrent problem during the winter months, according to Lori Little, Lancaster County 4-H Animal Science Agent. Thrush is a fungus or bacterial infection which occurs in the frog of the hoof. It is characterized by a dark, foul smelling discharge which causes the frog to become mushy and soft. Thrush thrives in wet, dirty conditions.

A clean dry stall and daily hoof care will prevent the problem. To treat thrush, clean out the hoof completely and apply a chemical sterilant, such as iodine, formaline or copper sulfate. Be careful to treat only the affected area so it will not dry out the entire sole of the hoof. It may be necessary to trim away some affected portions of the frog. Do this very carefully as to not draw blood. Thrush responds quickly to treatment as long as the stall conditions are modified.

To Caulk Cracks

As much as 30 per cent of a home's heat may be lost through leaks and cracks. Doors, windows, chimneys and the foundation of the house offers opportunities for heat leakage, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agent. Good quality caulking will help prevent much of this heat loss resulting in a savings of heating dollars and a warmer room.

Before starting the job, identifying the main areas of heat loss. Check spaces where pipes, wires, cables or water faucets enter the house. Check around doors and window frames where the frames meet the walls. Look under window sills and between porches and the main portion of the house for identifying where the leaks are, select the proper caulk for the job. Generally look for caulking materials which have a high to water, are easy to use and are paintable.

To Keep Antifreeze from

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reminds us when changing your antifreeze or checking your radiator, be careful of any spills. Do not leave spills without cleaning them up first. Do not leave open containers of antifreeze sitting around to be spilled.

Many pets enjoy the sweet taste of antifreeze. Ethylene glycol, the main ingredient in antifreeze is extremely toxic if ingested by pets. Always clean up spills containing antifreeze immediately. Also, dispose of old antifreeze properly. Keep new antifreeze in the original containers with the safety type caps in place.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "A warm smile is the universal language of kindness."

Background Scripture
Malachi 2:17 through 3:18
Devotional Reading:
Malachi 2:17 through 3:5

Our concept of God doesn't permit us to think of him as ever getting tired. But, if it were possible, it would be human beings who could do it! That God isn't ever exhausted certainly is not from lack of tryig on our part.

In the Book of Malachi, therefore, we have to keep in mind that the prophet is speaking only figuratively when he says, "You have wearied the Lord with your words: (2:17). I know the feeling. If religion were primarily a matter of the words we speak, we'd all be religious masters. How easy it is to go on verbally about religion without demonstrating our words with deeds. Sometimes I ask, "Lord, don't you get tired of all these words, words, words?"

Of course, it is not our words but our deeds that tell the most about us. Very often, I think, we use words as a substitute for deeds. Words become a wall that hides us — or at least we think it hides us. In Malachi's own day people were questioning how God could be just, yet permit injustice. Mockingly, they said, "Everyone who does evil is good in the sight of the Lord, and he delights in them."

Or, more directly: "Where is the God of justice?" This all sounds somewhat blasphemous, but let's be honest, isn't that the way we think sometimes? Don't we wonder how God can possibly permit evil to flourish and good to be trodden into the dust.

WHICH EVIL MAN?

I believe it was St. Augustine who told about two Christians who were having a knock-down, dragout dispute (not exactly the way St. Augustine described it). One man, lifted up his voice and cried, "Oh Lord, strike down and punish this evil man." The heavenly voice replied: "Which evil man?" Lots of us are anxious for God's judgment to come upon the earth because we assume that that is bad news for our neighbors and good news for us. What we are overlooking is the Bible's insistence that judgment is bad news for all of us. (The Bible also tells us the good news of God's grace.)

So it was in Malachi's day, too. Lots of the people were eager for God's judgment because they believed it would fall on someone else. "Behold, I send my messenger to prepare the way before me," says Malachi, "and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple; the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight, behold he is coming, and who can stand when he appears!" (3:1,2). The answer: no one.

The purpose of God's judgment, according to Malachi, is not to destroy the evil malefactor, but to refine him or her. Here Malachi is using a technical term which is applied to burning a metal ore to rid it of all its impurities. "For he is like a refiner's fire . . . he will sit as refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, till they present right offerings to the Lord" (3:2b,3).

'THE EVIL ONES'

Do you remember how bitterly disappointed Jonah was because Nineveh repented and thereby escaped God's judgment? Jonah preached doom to the people of Nineveh, not so that they would repent, but because he wanted to see vengeance against these people. Just as God sent a refiner's fire, not to destry the sons of Levi, but so that they could again "present right offerings to the Lord," so he sent Jonah to Nineveh so that they might be spared.

We need to be very careful when we nurse the desire for vengeance in our hearts, even when that vengeance is supposedly in defense of God's honor. In his book The Urge to Punish, Professor Henry Weihofen quotes Nietzsche: "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is strong." Weihofen goes on to comment, "No one is more bitter in condemning the 'loose' woman than the 'good' women who have on occasion guiltily enjoyed some purpose dreams themselves. It is never he who is without sin who casts the first stone."

"But who can endure the day of his coming, and who can stand when he appears?" By ourselves, none of us. With the grace of God, all of us.

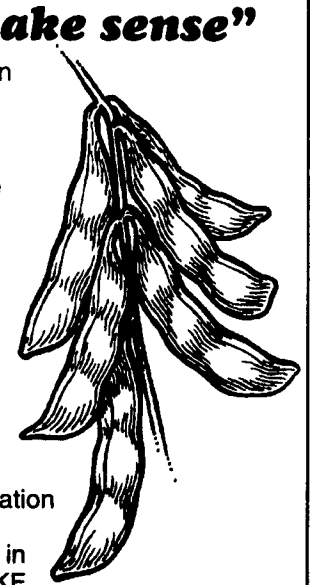
Sell your beans?
"It just doesn't make sense"
1. Why loose the 18% high energy oil in your own beans?
2. Why let the soybean processor take the valuable lechicin?
3. Why forfeit 50% of the metabolizable energy over SBM?
4. Why pay storage, trucking and shrink?



Be sensible!
Let SCHNUPP'S custom roast your Soybeans
Receive the value of added fat in your ration - MORE MILK
Get the most By-Pass Protein available in your beans - MORE PROTEIN UPTAKE
Keep all the nutritional components originally in the soybean. - MORE FLEXIBILITY

Lebanon DHIA Announces Top Producers

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon County Dairy Herd Improvement Association last week held its annual meeting and awards banquet at the Myerstown Church of the Brethren in Myerstown.

Phares Musser of Myerstown presided with Marlin Getz of Myerstown offering the invocation.

Members heard reports from Dale Hoover, its state director; David Shenk III, Pa.DHIA regional manager; Dave Slusser, general manager of Pa.DHIA; and Galen Kopp, county extension dairy agent.

Directors whose terms expire this year include Jay Good of Lebanon, Phares Musser of Newmanstown, and Jay Weaver of Myerstown. In an election of new directors, Dave Groff of Lebanon, Bruce Heilinger of Newmanstown, and Kirby Horst of Newmanstown, were selected to serve on the board.

In a report of county records, Lebanon had 117 herds with an average of 73.2 cows, with production of 22,203 pounds milk, 780 pounds fat, and 708 pounds protein.

The milk and protein averages were the top values for members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, while the fat production was second among Pa.DHIA members.

The change from last year was an average increase in milk per cow of 1,298 pounds; and increase of 38 pounds protein, and 22 pounds fat.

The average value for a hundred pounds milk was $13.73, a decrease of an average of 31 cents per hundred pounds; while the value of milk per cow was $3,048, an increase of $377 per cow.

The average total feed cost per cow was $1,191, and increase of $66 per cow, while the average cow profitability, expressed in the difference of income received over feed costs, per cow, was $1,857, an increase of $311.

The feed cost per hundredweight of milk produced was $5.36, and decrease of 55 cents per hundredweight.

Lebanon DHIA recognizes top herd and individual cow production, lifetime production, low somatic cell count and herd management.

In herd management recognition, Terry Shuey of Little Hill Farm, Lebanon, received the first place plaque, while also taking the top award for low somatic cell count, with a level of 99,000.

Tied for second place for herd management were David Brandt and Sons of Annville, and Scott and Karen Nolt of Lebanon. In third place was Bruce Heilinger of Newmanstown.

The award for having the top herd-average milk production went to David and Christine Williams of Jonestown whose herd (they graze) produced 28,836 pounds of milk per cow.

The Williamses also had the highest producing cow among county DHIA members with their "Sun" cow making 41,289 pounds of milk, 1,265 pounds of protein and 1,436 pounds of fat.

Donald Krall of Lebanon received an award for his cow Stacy, which left the herd this year, for making 284,725 pounds of milk in 11 lactations.

The award for having the top herd-average production for protein and fat went to David Brandt and sons, with 925 pounds of protein and 1,066 pounds of fat.

Hitchcock received trophies sponsored by Agway A.A.P. of Western New York, Corry Agway, and David Brown.

The Warren County Holstein Club honored the youth with special recognition. The 1997 Holstein Distinguished Junior Member was Peter Vanco of Bear Lake. Peter was recognized at the state level for his application.

Winners of the Holstein classes at this year's Junior Dairy Show at the Warren County Fair were presented with personalized sweatshirts. These included Kelsi Wilcox, Melinda Brown, Dustin Wilcox, Jonathan Nickerson, Chris Vanco, Rebecca Gruber, and Cassie Nickerson.

The Warren County Dairy Bowl Team of Jessica Gruber, Sarah Lindell, and Kelsi Wilcox were honored for their achievements.

Some of the special guests who attended the annual meeting included Nichoel Meabon, Pennsylvania dairy princess; Deborah Callan, Warren County dairy princess; Ken Raney, executive director of Pennsylvania Holstein Association; Dave Slusser, executive director of Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association; and Ralph Gilkinson, state director of DHIA.

Cooper Family Recognized For Herd Production Boost

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

SHREWSBURY (York Co.) — A whopping herd average increase propelled the Ramsey Cooper family's Holstein herd to the top of York County's Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) list for the 1997 test year.

Those milk output boosts earned the Delta-area dairying operation several top honors at the York DHIA's annual meeting and recognition dinner, held November 19 at the Shrewsbury Fire Company Hall.

With a 12-month increase of 3,562 pounds of milk and 121 pounds of protein, the Cooper herd earned plaques for both highest herd milk and protein increases, as well as high herd in the county, with an average of 28,953 pounds of milk, 1,008 pounds butterfat and 909 pounds protein. The honor for overall herd management likewise went to the Cooper family, whose 75-head herd, managed by son Scott, is on a 3X daily milking schedule.

Highest individual for 305-day lactations among the county's cows on test was Bea, an individual from the Earl Fuhrman herd, Hanover, completing a 39,095-pound milk record. High 305-day protein producer was Poppy, a herd member of Smyser's Richlawn Farm, York, completing a 1,180-pound protein record.

The Smyser herd was cited for two high lifetime production awards for cows removed with the year from the herd. They were Joelyn, the county's top lifetime record for the past year, with an eight-lactation total of 278,297 pounds, and Sally, totalling 267,786 pounds production in nine lactations.

Honored as the lowest somatic cell county herd in the county were brothers Glenn and Gary Crowl, Airville, with an average SCC count of 111,000.

In a brief review of the county's DHIA-year accomplishments, president Jon Sprenkle noted that 13 county herds had produced increases of more than 2,000 pounds milk during the recently-completed test year. During the annuel business meeting, Philip Laughman, York, and Leonard Greek, Delta, were elected for three-year terms to the county board of directors, while a third director position remained unfilled. Completing their terms were Keith Eisenhart, Ed Calhoun and Don Avery.

News From New Bolton Center...

School of Veterinary Medicine
UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

1997 - 1998 Schedule For New Bolton Center Public Lectures

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — The University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine will offer a series of six free lectures for the public throughout 1997-1998 at New Bolton Center (NBC) in Kennett Square, PA. All lectures begin at 7 p.m. and take place in the Woerner Amphitheater in the George D. Widener Hospital. Parking is free. Topics and dates are as follows:

Treatment and Prevention of Equine Foot Lameness

Thursday, December 4, 1997, 7 p.m. Mr. Rob Sigafoos, Director of Farrier Services, NBC

Researchers have developed ultra-high strength fabrics, extreme impact/shock resistant plastics, and super tough adhesives that are used in such diverse applications as body armor and jet fighter aircraft. How can these materials he used to benefit the equine athlete? The Applied Polymer Research Laboratory at New Bolton Center is dedicated to the research and development of materials that can alleviate foot problems in horses. The laboratory has created high-tech, innovative shoes and treatments for many common and uncommon foot problems. Learn how adhesives distribute the load over the horse foot more evenly and why that is such a benefit. What are the possibilities for shock attenuating "cushioning" materials for the lame and the sound horse? Rob Sigafoos, a Certified Journeyman Farrier has been shoeing horses for over 20 years, and holds two patents for bonded shoes. He lectures and publishes extensively, and is an expert on structural hoof wall problems in horses.

Preventative Medicine for Horses, the Basis for Establishing Effective Communication With Your Veterinarian

Thursday, February 5, 1998, 7 p.m. Peggy Marsh, DVM, Resident, Section of Medicine, NBC

Topics to be covered: common parasites and various deworming strategies, common diseases and the vaccinations used to provide protection, and suggestions for horse owners about setting up a preventative medicine program. A native Californian who grew up around horses and graduated in 1992 from the School of Veterinary Medicine University of California-Davis, Dr. Marsh has had the opportunity to work at a variety of referral equine practices around the country and Australia. She is currently in the residency program for large animal internal medicine at New Bolton Center.

Ultrasound Examination of High Risk Pregnant Mares, What Can They Tell Us?

Thursday, March 26, 1998, 7 p.m. Dr. Virginia Reef, Virginia B. Reef, DVM, DACVIM, Professor of Medicine, Director of Large Animal Ultrasonography and Cardiology, Chief Section of Sports Medicine and Imaging, NBC

It has only been in the past decade that veterinarians have developed preventative care practices for pregnant mares. One way veterinarians have achieved this at NBC is to develop data for accurate biophysical profiles of mares and their fetuses through the use of ultrasonography. The value of being able to detect indicators of fetal distress in utero has long been recognized in human medicine. These profiles for the late term equine fetus indicate normal values for fetal size using aortic diameter, fetal heart rate and movement, utero placental thickness, quantities of the fluid filled sacs surrounding the fetus and twin discovery. Dr. Reef received her degree in veterinary medicine from Ohio State University and did her internship and residency at the School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Pennsylvania. Her primary area of research is equine cardiology and diagnostic ultrasonography. Dr. Reef is also the author of the first book on Equine Diagnostic Ultrasound published this year by W.B. Saunders in Philadelphia.

Managing the Injured Horse - First Aid Principles Everyone Should Know

Thursday, April 16, 1998, 7 p.m. James A. Orsini, DVM, DACVS, Associate Professor of Surgery, NBC

Marking the right decisions at the time of serious injury can save the life of your horse. The old adage of having to destroy a horse because of a severe orthopedic injury is not the case in the '90s. Owners play an important role in the emergency care of their horse. Dr. James A. Orsini states, "With the improvements in orthopedics during the last 20 years, many severely injured equine athletes and pleasure horses are being returned to a normal quality of life." Dr. Orsini received his degree in veterinary medicine from Cornell University and did his internship and residency training in surgery at the School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Pennsylvania. His primary areas of research include equine surgery and pharmacotherapy. He has a special interest in pediatric orthopedics. Dr. Orsini is the author of the book Manual of Equine Emergency: Procedures and Treatment which is the first published book by W.B. Saunders in Philadelphia on this subject. This book will serve as a reference for the horse owner and veterinarian alike. It is a must if you own a horse!

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

scaping on the side for about 10 years while helping his father run the dairy.

One day in 1987, he ran across an advertisement announcing a meeting for Round Hill turkey growers at the New Oxford Fire Hall. He spoke with Round Hill representatives and, that same year, the first house was constructed. (Wampler Foods, Hinton, Va., purchased the Round Hill business in 1993.)

That house, measuring 50 by 632 feet, includes a brooder house and a growout area separated by bird age, one from 6-7 weeks and the other takes the birds up to 19 weeks.

That same year, Keller constructed a truck tire disinfection station, cleaning the wheels, wheel wells, and tires of all trucks before they are allowed to enter the farm. Those first steps at biosecurity proved useful in warding off many poultry diseases which can infect birds.

David farms with wife Karen and daughter Janel, 14, and Jason, 16, who help with fieldwork and feeding the small birds.

In 1992, the second house was built, measuring 50 by 625 feet. The houses include power ventilated fans. In all, both facilities house 26,000 toms, grown in 19-19½ weeks to about 34-36 pounds under the Wampler contract. The Kellers finish four cycles of birds a year, although sometimes they finish only three cycles.

The poults are delivered at a day to a day and a half old, weighing about 55 grams, from Cuddy Farms hatchery in North Carolina. Most are the British United Turkey (BUT) poults, or hybrids. Some are Nicholas.

About 13,000 poults arrive on one trailer, many from 2-3 different farms. About 100 each are housed in individual crates, which are dumped into rings at the farm.

The poults have been beak-trimmed and toe-trimmed. They are fed "crumbles" or pebbles of feed by hand the first week. The nutritionist determines the feed makeup of the crumbles, which includes corn, soybean meal, and vitamins.

In four weeks the poults are switched to a pelletized feed until they finish in about 19 weeks at 34-36 pounds.

After they are shipped, the houses are cleaned and disinfected and made ready for another flock.

Two houses care for 6,500 birds per house.

Keller noted that, despite the change in corporate names, Wampler involves dealing with the same people as Round Hill. Wampler sells turkeys to 41 different countries.

Birds are moved off the farm 72 cages on a side, six cages high. There are 144 cages on the trailer.

About a week before Thanksgiving, a trailer arrived and transported the birds to Wampler in time for the holiday.

For the Kellers, the biggest challenge, according to David, was keeping the birds cool when things got "real hot out." Humidity levels sour and the health of the birds is challenged.

What proves particularly irritating is humidity, which is nearly impossible to control. In the summer, birds use about 3,000 gallons of water per day — so the challenge involves keeping the birds sated and, for the smaller birds at least, with higher demands for food.

Also, disease "is a very big concern in the poultry business," Keller noted. "So far we've been lucky."

The first years in business, Keller faced a real threat from MG, which prompted him to install the disinfection station to get rid of the disease before it came to his farm. The station was installed in 1988.

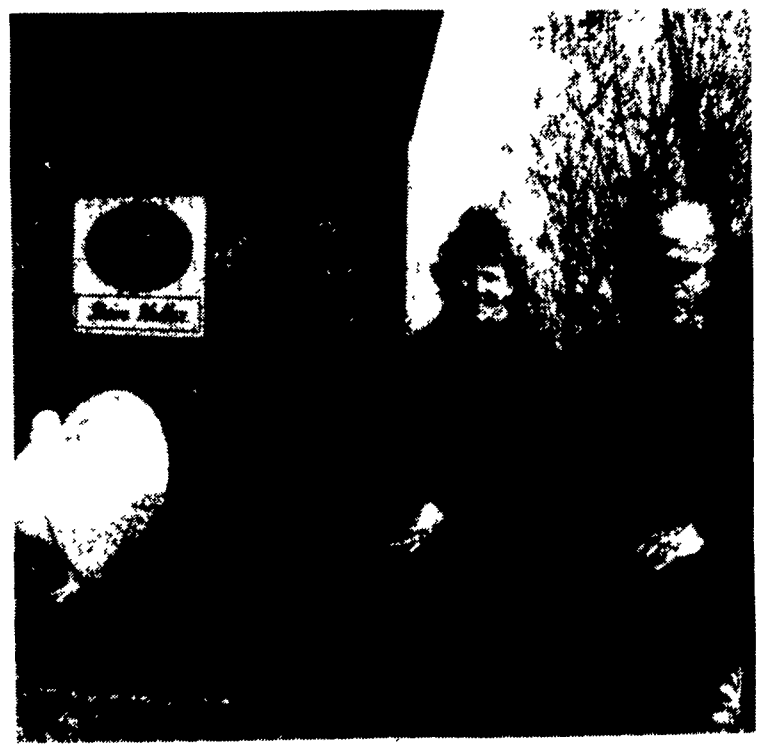
The Kellers farm 20 acres (about 10 acres are tilled) on their turkey farm near Gettysburg. The farm was parceled out from David's father, Joseph's, dairy farm across the road. They stand next to house built in 1987. At right is the house built in 1992.

Of course other challenges the Kellers face are cholera, avian influenza (A.I.), Newcastle, and others. A big concern this past year was with A.I., which hit flocks in the previously quarantined section of northern Lancaster County.

Another challenge is dealing with the amount of poultry manure generated at the farm. Fortunately, the Kellers rely on Richard Flickinger, located nearby, to handle the manure.

The decision to go into the turkey business has proven fruitful for Keller, since he reached one of his objectives: more time with his family.

"At the time, I was tired of working away and I wanted to be home more," he said. This way, he noted, he can take care of things around the house while keeping a close eye on the day-to-day operations of the farm.



David, right, farms with wife Karen, left, at their farm near Gettysburg. David, who grew up on the dairy farm, worked in a machine shop for a few years. After work with the machine shop, Keller did landscaping on the side for about 10 years while helping his father run the dairy.

Secretary Hayes Honors Egg Quality Efforts

that they had no control over the use or misuse of their eggs, but they were the first ones to be blamed for food safety problems.

Also Salmonella enteritidis (SE) began showing up in eggs and it became apparent that the hens were carrying it and passing it on. The bacteria causes food poisoning in people and warm blooded animals.

Research efforts began to control the bacteria and keep it out of the layers, and thus out of the eggs.

The only problem is, that SE can enter any of the various egg-to-consumer delivery systems, depending on the specifics of the delivery system.

In retail situations, it became apparent that education of food service workers was needed at various levels on handling, cooking and serving eggs and egg products.

Efforts were made to try to educate retailers, grocers, restaurant and institutional foods people about how to store and use eggs safely.

Eventually the state Legislature created the egg refrigeration law, which now requires eggs to be stored at cool temperatures. Previously, eggs were considered something of an easy care commodity, and room temperature was fine.

Indeed, different strains of bacteria, poor sanitation by food handlers, and apparent unconcern by some, were all to blame for Pennsylvania eggs getting a black eye at that time.

Therefore, in order to provide egg producers and the production support/dependent industry with some protection from finger-pointing in the future, the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP, pronounced pea-cap) was created.

The purpose statement of PEQAP is direct:

"The Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP) is a voluntary industry program intended to minimize Salmonella enteritidis (SE) contamination of chicken (shell) eggs.

"Although this program does not guarantee shell eggs to be free of SE contamination, the program does assure commitment of the producer to implementation of those management and monitoring practices most likely to prevent SE contamination.

"Basic preventive measures include placement of SE clean chicks, intensive rodent control, cleaning disinfecting between flocks, and environmental monitoring of pullet and layer houses with continuous testing of eggs from any environmentally positive houses.

"Positive eggs are diverted for pasteurization. Eggs must be kept refrigerated.

"The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Agriculture provide technical advice and financial assistance to this program.

"PEQAP participants are assuring the public that they are taking every reasonable precaution to assure the safety of shell eggs."

From the left, state Sen. Noah Wenger, chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, leads the line of guests and honorees in sampling a made-to-order omlette made by culinary arts students of the Harrisburg Area Community College.

The program Tuesday morning attracted a number of television news crews and other media, some already in the Capitol because the state Legislature was in session, before breaking for the holidays, and legislative activity is normally expected to provide news stories this week.

From a podium off to the side of the rotunda in the Capitol north extension, Secretary Hayes discussed the program and lauded the efforts of those who participate and to those to whom he presented certificates of appreciation.

"PEQAP is one of the foremost food safety programs of its kind in the nation, and have become a symbol of quality in the marketplace," Hayes said. "The PEQAP label assures consumers that they are purchasing eggs produced according to the highest safety and quality standards."

Participating egg retailers receiving certificates were Paul Stauffer from Stauffers of Kissel Hill, Bob Ballantine of Fleming Companies Inc., John Kulik for Pennsylvania Food Merchants Association, Mike McGovern for the Pennsylvania Restaurant Association, and Dennis Curtin representing Weis Markets Inc.

Ensuring a Healthy Puppy
Thursday, April 30, 1998, 7 p.m. John Melniczek, VMD, Resident in Medical Genetics and Pediatrics, VHUP

This lecture addresses important questions new owners should ask the breeder of their puppy and the pet's new veterinarian. Common puppy illnesses, vaccinations, and preventative medical care will also be discussed. John Melniczek is a Resident in Medical Genetics and Pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine. Penn State Offers Dairy Management Seminar

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Several recent seminars offered by land grant universities have focused on what dairy farmers may want to consider in order to position themselves best for continuing in business for the next 10 to 20 years.

While some recent seminars have focused more on general industry trends, potential changes based on those trends, and futuristic analyses, others have been designed to deal with farming operations and what challenges and decisions they may face, respective to the different aspects of those operations.

One such series of dairy management seminars has been scheduled to be held at three different places in the south central region of the state Dec. 11-12.

The featured speaker is Dr. David Galton of Cornell University, a professor in the university's Department of Animal Sciences since 1981, currently the department's extension leader, who is nationally recognized for formalizing the Dairy Fellows Program.

The Dairy Fellows Program is designed for students interested in dairying and related careers, to encourage them to pursue their careers and develop industry leadership for the future.

The series of seminars is being co-sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Protiva Division of Monsanto.

The first program is to be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Dec. 11 at the Rhodes Grove Camp Conference Center in Chambersburg.

The second program is to be held later Dec. 11, from 6:30 p.m. to the 9:30 p.m., at the Hoss's Restaurant located on the west side of York.

It to also be presented Dec. 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

The seminar theme is, "Positioning you dairy business for a successful future," according to Philip Wagner, Franklin County Penn State Extension dairy agent.

According to Wagner, "This program will encourage you to take a critical look at your farm business. You will also learn the financial and management characteristics of successful dairy busiesses. This upbeat program will enthuse and encourage you about your business.

"If you want to see your dairy business move successfully into the next century, this is a seminar you should attend," he stated in a news release.

In addition to being the Cornell animal science department's extension leader, Galton has taught dairy cattle management and has conducted research in the areas of mastitis control, accelerated heifer growth, use of BST as a management tool, milking parlor efficiency, and extended calving intervals.

Secretary Hayes Honors Egg Quality Efforts

and the Pennsylvania Egg Council, provided an overview of the PEQAP program, while state Sen. Noah Wenger, acting chairman of the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, and Rep. Raymond Bunt, chairman of the House Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee talked about the public/private partnership that occurred to create the voluntary program.

In his comments, Secretary Hayes said that under the program (that uses S.E. control procedures and testing developed through an USDA pilot program), that a there has been a significant reduction of S.E. in layer flocks.

"The program lets consumers know that producers and government are taking reasonable action to assure the safety of shell eggs," he said.

About 300 retailers carry eggs produced under the PEQAP label.

The program is carried out through an agreement with PDA which provides laboratory diagnostic services and oversight of risk reduction measures; the state Department of Health, which provides technical advice regarding public health; and the industry, which has to follow the measures and bear the additional costs.

Secretary Hayes also invited those present to sample some of the quality eggs.

Against one edge of the rotunda, a double cooking/serving line was set up and manned by culinary arts students from the Harrisburg Area Community College, in cooperation with the Chefs Association of Greater Harrisburg.

The students dressed in chef garb prepared custom omeletes, with stuffing and added ingredients selected by those testing the food.

For the students, it provided an opportunity to learn about the program, and to witness state leaders in action promoting eggs and food safety.

State Rep. Raymond Bunt, chairman of the state House Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, thanks culinary arts students of the Harrisburg Area Community College for the omlette, part of a Tuesday program to recognize the state Egg Quality Assurance Program.

National FFA Convention Focuses On Leadership, Personal Growth

KANSAS CITY, Mo – The celebration of the FFA's 70th year as an organization for agricultural education students attracted more than 43,000 members, advisers, and guests to the National FFA Convention, Nov. 13-15.

The 1997 convention theme "Building the Future" symbolized the agricultural education organization's mission to prepare students to create the best possible future for themselves, their communities, the agricultural industry, the nation, and the world.

Through many national FFA convention experiences, members had the unique opportunity to develop themselves as premier leaders and young professionals. The diverse lineup of motivational speakers who addressed audiences throughout the week included actor, director and community leader Edward James Olmos; Orion Samuelson, agricultural broadcaster and Channel Earth Communications chairman of the board, motivational speaker Ron Archer; Ted Waitt, chairman and CEO of Gateway 2000; agricultural futurist Dr. Lowell Catlett; and former Miss America Heather Whitestone McCallum.

The FFA National Agricultural Career Show brought 341 exhibitors to expose FFA members to a vast array of agricultural careers, programs and products. The exhibit hall covers an area larger than five football fields, representing business and industry, colleges, universities, agricultural products and services, and other diverse areas that support or are a part of the total FFA experience.

While in Kansas City, FFA members participated in a number of career development events, leadership workshops, awards ceremonies and banquets The American FFA Degree, the highest level of achievement for an FFA member, was awarded to 1,711 members. The FFA also recognized businesses and individuals who support the organization by awarding the Honorary American FFA Degree, Distinguished Service awards, the H.O. Sargent Award, and VIP Citations. The convention was also a time to showcase the National FFA Foundation sponsors.

National FFA Raises $7.1 Million

For the 31st consecutive year, the National FFA Foundation has set a record level of support for FFA and agricultural education programs. At the 70th National FFA Convention, 1997 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman, Wayne Beck, announced that the Foundation raised a total of $7,111,000 in 1997 to support annual projects and programs for FFA and agricultural education, an all-time record.

Beck, vice president, supply management of Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc., said the contributions of the more than 1,000 sponsors help prepare future agricultural leaders. "This record investment in the future of agriculture ensures that it will be bright," said Beck.

In addition to the annual funds raised for FFA, Beck also announced that to-date $2,972,500 had been pledged to the "I Believe in the Future" Capital Campaign to relocate the FFA Center to Indianapolis, Indiana in May 1998.

Beck introduced 1998 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board Chairman-elect A. Charles Fischer, vice president, North [illegible] DowElanco. Fischer announced the 1998 Foundation theme, "FFA–Building the Future."

Since 1944, the National FFA Foundation has provided more than $80 million to FFA members for awards, scholarships, and achievement programs

1997-1998 National FFA Officer Team Elected

The six student members who will lead the National FFA Organization for the 1997-1998 year were elected Nov. 15 at the 70th National FFA Convention.

Hillary Smith, a 20-year-old from Perry, Ga., is the new national FFA president. Shannon Wilcox, 20, of Kenton, Ohio, was elected national FFA secretary. Vice presidents representing each region are: Mark Wilburn, 20, of Laddonia, Mo., central region; Dana Fisher, 20, of Mauertown, Va., eastern region; Amber Miller, 19, of Louisville, Ala., southern region; and Cody Nash, 19, of Tolar, Texas, western region. The officers will take a year-long leave of absence from college to serve their terms.

Smith's parents are Luke and Anne Smith. She is a member of the Perry FFA Chapter where her advisers are Argene Claxton and Tim Lewis. Smith is involved with swine and fern production and placement in cotton production as her supervised agricultural experience program (SAE). She is a junior at the University of Georgia, majoring in agricultural education.

Wilcox, the daughter of Thomas and Beverly Wilcox, is a member of the Upper Scioto Valley FFA Chapter. Her adviser is Lori Dyer. Wilcox's SAE is a diversified crop and beef production enterprise. She attends The Ohio State University where she is a junior majoring in agricultural education.

Wilburn is the son of Robert and Susan Wilburn. He is a member of the Van-Far FFA Chapter where his adviser is Rex Moore. Beef and swine enterprises and placement in production make up Wilburn's SAE. A junior at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Wilburn majors in agricultural economics.

Fisher's parents are Gerald and Patricia Fisher. A member of the Central FFA Chapter, his advisers are Sherry Heishman and George Bowers Fisher has a diverse SAE that includes agribusiness, vegetable production, market steer production, and forestry and wildlife management. He attends Virginia Tech, where he is a sophomore majoring in agricultural education.

During their year of service, the national officers each will travel more than 100,000 miles making hundreds of appearances on behalf of the FFA. The national officers represent members to officials in government, business, education and agriculture. As they travel during the year, they meet with members on the local, state and national levels.

National FFA Organization Announces American Star Farmer, Star Agribusiness

The National FFA Organization announced the winners of its two most prestigious awards, the American Star Farmer and American Star in Agribusiness, during the 70th National FFA Convention.

The 1997 American Star Farmer is Mike McIntyre, 21, from Winfred, S.D., and the 1997 American Star in Agribusiness is Mark Dudgeon, 20, from Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

These awards recognize students who have established profitable agricultural enterprises or agribusinesses, demonstrated outstanding management skills, earned the American FFA Degree – the organization's highest level of accomplishment – and met other agricultural education and leadership requirements.

Each winner will receive $1,000 from the National FFA Foundation, Inc., in addition to the $1,000 they received as a finalist. Each of the eight star finalists also will take an agricultural tour of Costa Rica or Europe in the summer of 1998.

The tour of Costa Rica or Europe and the American FFA Degree recognition program are co-sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. of Johnston, Iowa; American Cyanamid Company, Agricultural Division of Wayne, N.J.; Case Corporation of Racine, Wis.; and The Farm Credit System of Washington, D.C., as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

Management Skills Pay Off For McIntyre

"Sound financial management will either make or break a farm," said Mike McIntyre, who at 21, already has 15 years experience in agriculture and is a fourth generation farmer. In addition to maintaining a herd of 263 stock cows, 12 bulls and 231 feeder calves, the Winfred, S.D., farmer also supervises three full-time and two part-time employees while running his fence installation business.

McIntyre is the winner of the National FFA Organization's 1997 American Star Farmer award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He was presented with the award at the 70th National FFA Convention, Nov. 13-15 in Kansas City, Mo.

"Mike is a good manager in that he has an unusual talent for making everything profitable," said South Dakota Executive FFA Secretary, Gerri Ann Eide.

"Marketing and book work are cornerstones of my operation," McIntyre said. "Up-to-date book work allows me to always know where I stand

Berks County Receives New Technician

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — When describing Amy Shields, a Pa. DHIA technician in Armstrong County, conscientious and motivated are two adjectives that come quickly to mind.

Amy is currently responsible for a clientele of 17 dairymen, which consists of over 1,300 cows per month. Amy resides in Worthington with her husband Dan and two children, Nathan and Brandon, on their dairy farm.

Amy graduated in 1988 from nearby Shananock Valley High School with a business secretarial degree. She has enjoyed working in the agriculture field having served as a herdsperson on a 300-goat dairy farm for one year owned by Dan Rhea.

Hobbies enjoyed by Amy are oil painting and being involved in the Burnt Ridge Bow and Gun Club.

Currently Pa. DHIA test 24 percent of all cows for milk urea nitrogen, which is very beneficial in analyzing the reproduction and nutrition of the cows. Research and development is at the top of the list with the milk urea nitrogent research program.

Which is evident in the overwhelming number of records being used by Dr. James Ferguson, New Bolton Center, University of Pennsylvania, numbering over one million individual cow records of every breed; by far the most of any DHIA in the nation.

Pa. DHIA uses the Foss 4000 testing machinery, which is the only Infra-red testing equipment that is approved by AOAC (Association of Official Analytical Chemists), Food and Drug Administration and ICAR (International Recording Committee).

Currently Pa. DHIA membership may receive same-day test reports at no extra cost from the technician. These reports can be tailor-made to each dairyman's needs.

Please feel free to call 1-800-344-8278 and be a part of Pa. DHIA, which currently has the industry's highest usable record status from USDA at 83 percent.

financially." To maximize profits, "I use the Data Transmission Network and marketing forecasts to decide when to market the livestock.

"In my feeder lamb operation," he continued, "I constantly monitor feeders, waterers, minerals and ground conditions. This keeps the rate of gain high."

McIntyre, a veterinary medicine student at Iowa State University, does most of his own veterinary work on the livestock and buys products in volume to help reduce costs.

The Lake Central FFA Chapter member has won the national sheep proficiency and agri-enterpreneurship awards. He has placed first in three state proficiency awards; sheep, beef and diversified livestock; and has been named South Dakota Star Farmer. His FFA adviser is Bud Postma.

All of these awards were possible because of "invaluable support and advice along the way from family, teachers, bankers and other lending agencies, and local veterinarians," McIntyre said. "My beginning came from savings that I had from working for my father," he explained. His parents are Linda and Neal McIntyre.

After obtaining his doctorate of veterinary medicine, McIntyre plans to establish a practice and expand his cattle operation to include 1,500 cow/calf pairs. "All aspects of my personal and business life are currently centered on agriculture," McIntyre said, "and with my future farming and veterinary enterprises, agriculture will continue to be the focus of my life."

Dudgeon Sees Potential In Expanding Nursery Operation

While still in the fifth grade, Mark Dudgeon decided it was time to start his own business. "I built a 12-by-12 steel greenhouse in the back yard," he said. "At the time I had very little money, so everything that I used to build it came out of the scrap pile." His father, who owned a nursery, contributed sand for the rooting beds, plastic to go over the structure and lots of advice.

The National FFA Organization recognized Mark Dudgeon's accomplishments in agriculture by naming him the 1997 American Star in Agribusiness, one of the organization's highest honors. The 20-year-old was presented with the award at the 70th National FFA Convention, Nov. 13-15 in Kansas City, Mo.

By the time he reached high school, the young Mt. Vernon, Ohio, entrepreneur already rented three and a half acres of trees, shrubs and seedling beds in North Carolina and had annual sales of around $10,000. This year, "my gross sales are averaging $20,600," he said.

"The biggest advantage I have had with my operation was my father," Dudgeon said. "When I was getting started, he was always there to lend me a helping hand." But sometimes,

Pennsylvania Farmer's Union Convenes In Bedford

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Charlie Nash, vice-president of the National Farmers Union, told those attending the 26th Pennsylvania Farmers Union, of recent achievements in Washington, DC.

Nash, began his work with the Farmers Union in 1969. Highlights of his Bedford speech follow:

"The Union recognizes that dairy farmers need help now. The Farmers Union conducted a nationwide campaign to partition congress to introduce legislation putting a floor on milk prices. Pennsylvania generated 2500 partitions."

"The National Farmers Union is not opposing trade. In fact, union members are strong proponents of fair trade, however, there are certain issues with which they are not comfortable"

Nash also spoke on concerns on a global basis for farm markets.

State Representative from Lebanon County, Ed Krebs, was the opening speaker for the three day convention. Krebs is vice chairman of the House Ag Committee.

Krebs noted that farmers can no longer depend on government funded programs. "We have got to get more creative in helping farm families survive," he said.

He also spoke of difficult issues facing agriculture today such as the "Bottle Bill," and "Grain Merchant Bonding Bill" as well as agricultural land preservation.

Officers elected at the Pennsylvania state convention included Robert C. Junk, Jr., Fayette county, president; Larry Breech, vice president; Dave Stetler, treasurer; and Terry Pattison, secretary.

Sandy Snyder of Bedford is the state delegate to the National Convention in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in March.

The Golden Triangle award, presented at each year's convention, represents education, cooperation, and legislation.

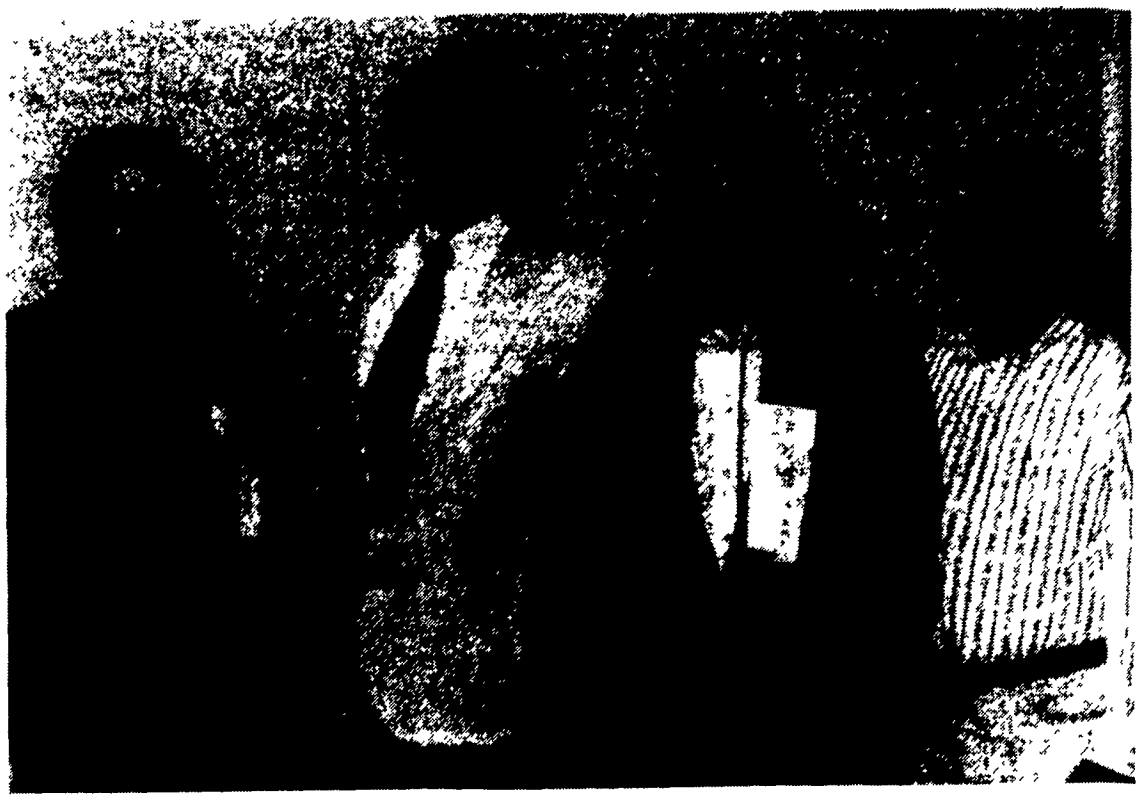
Thomas Ackermen of North Hampton County received the education award; Dale Snyder, Bedford, the cooperation; and Sherman Allen, Crawford County, legislation.

Two new members were inducted into the Hall of Fame and included Hazel and Behney Auspach of Bedford, and Hannah Fenstermaker of Lycoming County.

Vice President Breech said other concerns of the convention were market concentrations such as the Packer and Stockyard Act not being administered.

"Farmers must become both environmentally and consumer oriented," Breech added.

"Our top concern", concluded the vice president, is that "We can only starve once."



New officers of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union are Robert C. Junk Jr., Larry Breech, Dave Stetler, and Terry Pattison.

Speaker Dave Shenk, regional manager for the Pennsylvania DHIA, noted that the state organization is the only remaining one of its kind still operated by a board of producer-directors. A $1.3 million debt undertaken by DHIA a few years ago for upgrading and improvements has been repaid and only a small debt remains to be paid by the state testing cooperative for computerization. According to Shenk, the organization will soon be debt-free; however, the state lab is in need of a new roof, laptop computers used by technicians will need upgraded and some sample-pickup trucks have surpassed the 500,000 mile mark. While the state group had looked at possible mergers earlier in the year, Shenk noted that the board had unanimously voted against that proposal.

Shenk credited the field testing technicians with being the heart and soul of the DHIA program adding that the average tenure of the technicians is 17 years. York County has five DHIA technicians, Donald Messinger, Jean Myers, Carolyn Stump, Clyde Stump and Marianne Walter.

A listing of the top five herds for the 1997 testing year in each award category honored by the York County DHIA follows:

even the support from his parents, Margaret and Norman Dudgeon, didn't help.

"In 1993, North Carolina (where Dudgeon's leased land was located) was struck with a major drought," he explained. "This drought killed off some of my liners and transplants. I had to irrigate nearly 15 hours a day to keep the drought from having a major impact on my inventory."

Producing inventory is just one part of Dudgeon's business. Once the plants are grown, he markets them through exhibiting at trade shows, speaking to FFA advisers and garden clubs and fund-raisers, and selling at the North Carolina Farmers Market in Asheville, N.C.

An active member of the East Knox FFA Chapter, Dudgeon was chapter vice president and reporter, competed in the state urban soil judging and nursery landscape judging contests, and won the national nursery operations proficiency award. His FFA adviser is Tom Holton.

Since graduating from high school, Dudgeon has moved to North Carolina to work with his business daily. "Within the next couple of years," he said, "I plan to purchase land of my own. I want to build my operation into a nationally recognized nursery, enroll in college and obtain a degree in horticulture."

National FFA Organization Gives Awards for Diversity

The National FFA Organization presented the H.O. Sargent Award at the 70th National FFA Convention to recognize students who have achieved and promoted diversity in agricultural education and the FFA.

Joel Bernhard, form Lomira, Wis., was named the first recipient of the H.O. Sargent Award for FFA members. He received $500 and a plaque.

The H.O. Sargent award existed in the New Farmers of America (NFA), the former organization for African-American agriculture students, before NFA was incorporated into FFA in 1965. This is the first year for FFA members to apply for this award.

Bernhard has been an active member of the National FFA Organization for four years. His involvement in the promotion of diversity started when he wanted to teach the public all aspects of "Being Blind." Bernhard has been blind since the age of five and wanted to reach out to the public about his disability. Bernhard has experienced one of his best turkey hunting seasons this fall, something that he can use to teach others how adversity will not overcome him.

"Activities I was involved in gave students and teachers a better understanding of how it feels to be blind," Bernhard said. "Helping them realize it takes a little longer to get to class or take notes or figure out who's talking to you when they don't tell you who they are."

The National FFA Organization presented the H.O. Sargent Award at the 70th National FFA Convention to recognize citizens who have achieved and promoted diversity in agricultural education and the FFA.

Bruce W. Bye, of Elanco Animal Health, Indiapolis, Ind., Blannie E. Bowen, a professor at Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pa., and Nelson J. Senter, a retired agricultural education instructor from Nashville Tenn, are the recipients of this year's award.

The H.O. Sargent award existed in the New Farmers of America (NFA), the former organization for African-American agriculture students, before NFA was incorporated into FFA in 1965. The award was presented again in 1995 and will continue as an annual recognition program. All applicants have been involved in agricultural education and have implemented new programs to promote agricultural diversity. Each winner will receive a plaque and national recognition at the National FFA Convention, Nov. 13-15.

"Let's build more than a program, let's build young people; and they will build communities as productive citizens!" said Bruce Bye, Worldwide Market Research, Elanco Animal Health.

The National FFA Organization established the H.O. Sargent Award for non-members in 1995 to remember the NFA and to recognize its place in the history of the FFA. This particular award is open to all people, both FFA members and non members, and is sponsored by Merial as a special recognition to the National FFA Foundation. Applications are available through the National FFA Organization.

Rutt Receives Delp Award

who purchased the farm in 1895 for $37.50 per acre.

Erb's son Amos spent his lifetime of 90 years on the farm, and Amos' daughter Freda and her husband John Landis moved to the farm, living in the house built in the 1760's. Now their son Jay raises tobacco and corn on his great-grandfather's land.

Jay received a certificate from PDA, represented by Zoann Parker, deputy secretary, and a plaque from CoreStates Bank, represented by Roger Rohrer.

Keynote speaker was John R Block, former U.S. secretary of agriculture in the Reagan adminstration. He said farmers are listening to consumers more than in the past and used the illustration of the grand champion hog he showed as a youth and the grand champion hog his son showed a generation later. Naturally the more recent hog was much leaner.

Block also said that while our food supply is not perfect, it is the safest in the world. And he gets bothered by hysteria when people get sick from eating "raw meat."

On trade the former secretary said we now have $60 billion going on $100 billion with many great opportunities. For example, China has 22 percent of the world's people but only seven percent of the good farming land. In America we have only five percent of the people but 13 percent of the good farm land. In addition, we have the transportation and technology to help feed the world.

As for farm prices, they will be volatile. With no support prices and no lid on the top farming will carry more risk. But Block believes for this greater risk, farmers will get more for their products.

Jim Shirk reported that the chamber's ag committee was quite active this year. They teamed up with many local agri-businesses to fund an agriculture display at the Hands On House near the Landis Valley Museum. Forty-thousand children go through this house, and now they can experience some modern ag practices.

The committee also organized a day at Orgeon Dairy Farm where 7000 people took the opportunity to visit the farm. They are also now active in the Penn State Advisory Council and hosted visitors from Poland, France, and China.

Sonja Hillgren, editor of Farm Journal, was the master of ceremonies. John Weidman, chairman of the agriculture committee, gave the welcome. And John Schwartz, director, Lancaster County Extension, gave the invocation and helped present the century award.

A special production agriculture membership is available in the chamber. The membership category allows farmers to join at a special rate, providing they are involved in production agriculture as their primary means of income and then receive approval from the ag membership committee. The rate is $100 per farm plus $25 per full-time non-family employee. Any farmer who may be interested in this offer should call Shirk at the Lancaster Chamber. Phone: (717) 397-3531.

Lassie Comes Home A Champion

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Emily Thornburg of Winchester, Indiana, was the proud owner of the grand champion of the Southern National Ayrshire Junior Show on Nov. 8, in Louisville, Kentucky.

Judge Bobby Griggs of Seminold, Oklahoma, gave the honor to Tri-Line Mandate Lassie, the first place 5-year-old sired by Flowerland BBK Mandate.

"Lassie's" EX-92 dam, Tri-Line High Fonz Lynn, has lifetime totals to 105,500M 3.5% 3,736F 3.1% 3,302P in 2,065 days.

The best bred and owned award went to Kevin Andrew Nolan of Cochranville, Pennsylvania, with his first place junior 2-year-old Dremnol Trident's Snow.

EME has changed over the years - our main lobby, for example - but we will never change our dedication to the principles that have helped us and our customers achieve sound, steady growth

Is your business big enough?

Bigger isn't always better, in farming or in any other business. But there are times when it makes sense to enlarge, remodel or update.

If you need several million dollars for your farm expansion, The Ephrata National Bank is probably not your bank. And that is fine with us. Our ag lending policies have always been geared to the small to medium sized operator. In over 100 years of serving consumers, famers and other businesses in our communities, we have found that well-planned, sensible growth is always better than growth for the sake of growth.

Bob Zook VP Ag Lending

Many of your neighbors have come to appreciate our approach to ag lending. Just ask them about us. They're easy to find They tend to smile a lot. Bob Zook

Organic Dairy Farmers Meet

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — United Ag Services of Seneca Falls, N.Y. recently sponsored a meeting in Wellsville, N.Y. for dairy farmers interested in producing organic milk. The demand for organically produced milk has had a dramatic increase in the past four years and the trend is expected to continue.

Joel Hoffman, Wellsville, a certified organic milk producer, has had very satisfactory results in using organic practices in his crop and milk production. Organic milk demands a substantial premium that makes the market very attractive to those considering a conversation to organic farming.

Jim Grace, from Cornell Cooperative Extension, presented a conservative cost/income analysis that indicates that dairy farmers that convert to organic from conventional farming can increase their net return.

Pat Kan, of NOFA (Northeast Organic Farming Association of New York, Inc.) discussed the requirements to become a certified organic producer. She fielded several questions regarding organic approved practices.

Alan Buddle, Orchardland, Inc., a dealer in organic fertilizer and approved minerals, spoke about the availability of imports and the services that his company provides.

James Patsos of United Ag Services provided information of the potential markets for organic milk. He stressed the importance of those interested to organize so that they can effectively market their milk. He urged the farmers to consider becoming members of Addison Milk Producers Cooperative. Addison has become an effective marketer for dairy farmers in the Steuben/Allegheny County area.

For more information about the production and marketing or organic milk, call Joel Hoffman at (716) 593-1658 or James Patsos at United Ag Services, (800) 326-4251.

prices to dairy farmers in the early part of each month.

A possible chaotic situation was averted when on November 7 the USDA asked the Department of Justice to seek a stay on Judge Doty's order.

The stay was granted on October's produced milk and currently the USDA is waiting for word on their request for an extension of the stay.

Loss of Differentials

Many producers are wondering as to what would happen if the Class I differentials were not reinstated. Certainly, no one knows everything that might happen, but there are a few knowns.

1. Class I prices could go down to the Basic Formula Price level.

2. In all probability milk handlers using milk for Class I purposes would not be compelled to pay into the producer settlement fund (or pay very little).

3. Milk handlers using milk for manufacturing purposes will not be able to pull money out of the producer settlement fund, (little money there). Consequently they could not pay the usual blend price, therefore they could not pay their producers as high of a price as Class I handlers would be able to.

4. If Class I prices fell to the basic formula price level, dairy farmers could possibly lose the following amount of money. Everyone has to remember that the class prices never develop their highest value in the same month. For instance — the September Class I price in Order #2 was only $13.28 per cwt. This price was developed with a B.F.P. in July of $10.86 per cwt. As a result of the B.F.P. climbing in the late summer, consequently September's Class III price was $12.85 per cwt. This price was only .43 cents less than the Class I Price. To complicate things more, September's Blend Price in Order #2 of $12.59 per cwt. was 20 cents less than September's B.F.P. (really confusing) of $12.79 per cwt.

If the Class I differentials had been eliminated in September, and the Class I price has been based on the B.F.P. than dairy farmers would have lost approximately 21 cents per cwt.

September Class I Price	$13.28 per cwt
Basic Formula Price	$12.79 per cwt.
Difference	$ 0.49 per cwt.
49 cents x 43% utilization = loss of $0.21 per cwt.
October would have been:
Class I Price	$14.49 per cwt.
Basic Formula Price	$12.83 per cwt.
Difference	$ 1.66 per cwt.
$1.66 x 43% utilization = loss of $0.71 per cwt.
November Class I Price	$15.21 per cwt.
Basic Formula Price (est.)	$13.00 per cwt.
Difference	$ 2.21 per cwt.
$2.21 x 43% utilization = loss of $0.95 per cwt.
December Class I Price	$15.25 per cwt.
Basic Formula Price (est.)	$13.00 per cwt.
Difference	$ 2.25 per cwt.
$2.25 per cwt. x 43% utilization = loss of $0.97 per cwt.
In January of 1998 if the B.F.P. dropped to $12 per cwt. then the potential loss could be much higher.
January ('98) Class I Price	$15.40 (est.) per cwt.
Basic Formula Price	$12.00 per cwt.
(only an example)	$ 3.40 per cwt. difference
$3.40 x 40% utilization = potential loss of $1.36 per cwt.

All of the above figures are based on the B.F.P. establishing Class I prices and everything else staying the same. If January's B.F.P. is approximately the same as December's 1997, then the potential loss on January's milk would be about the same as December's loss. Everyone knows the Class I utilization varies from month to month, but we used a uniform 43% for Class I milk September through December, and 40% for January.

The potential loss to dairy farmers and the state of confusion within the dairy industry is more than enough reason to overturn Judge Doty's decision.

Maryland Dairy Industry Organized Voice

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — The inaugural meeting of the Maryland Dairy Industry Association drew a crowd of almost 200 dairy farmers and industry representatives to the Holiday Inn FSK here. The day's agenda included a business meeting with election of officers, a lineup of speakers, and a panel discussion. After an evening banquet there was a talk by an inspirational speaker. Exhibits were displayed in the conference room.

MDIA was formed on year ago to provide an organized voice for the Maryland dairy industry. The group's mission is to enhance state dairy farmers' livelihood so the dairy industry is a viable part of the Maryland economy.

From 1980 to 1995 the number of Maryland dairy farms with milk permits dropped from about 1800 to about 875, according to the industry association. Total annual milk production declined from 1.52 to 1.34 billion pounds during that same time period. MDIA seeks to stabilize the industry and assist in retaining the infrastructure that serves it by promoting profitability for dairy producers through legislative channels with a unified voice, and by providing a forum for the interchange of ideas and technology.

The business meeting was held in the morning and directors were elected and officers appointed. New directors were elected as follows: District I, Garrett and Allegany Counties; Ed Crossland: District II, Washington County: Boyd Cook, Will Godwin, and Janet Stiles; District III, Frederick County: Wayne Burdette, Denny Crum, Nola "Cookie" Ramsburg, and Harold Lenhart; District IV, carroll County; Sue Myers, Myron Wilhide; District V, Baltimore, Harford, Cecil, Howard, and Montgomery Counties: William Kilby, Darryl Walker; District VI, Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland: Jeff Moore.

Myron Willhide, who served as interim president for the association during the past year, was elected president. Other officers will be Harold Lenhart, vice-president; Nola "Cookie" Ramsburg, secretary; and Will Godwin, treasurer.

This year MDIA will focus its energy on a legislative effort supporting the Southern Dairy Compact, said Myron Wilhide. Pat McMillan, assistant to the secretary at the Maryland Department of Agriculture and Legislative Liaison for the MDA, suggested the compact was, "another policy option for Maryland dairyman to consider." Joining the Northeast Dairy Compact is not currently an option for Maryland, according to McMillan, because "Pennsylvania and New York elected not to join, essentially closing the door for Maryland"., (In order to join the compact a state must be contiguous to a member state).

The Southern compact would create an interstate pricing system for the region stretching from Texas to Maryland. The Ag Commission would have the authority to set class I milk prices in the area. McMillan stressed it is very difficult for a single state on its own to have an effective program. By joining with other states, the advantage would be that the compact could regulate milk that comes into the area, said McMillan.

"East state must pass legislation to join the compact, and then must go to congress to pass that compact. Congressional approval is needed because the compact would supersede interstate commerce," explained McMillan. He stressed there were no provisions in the compact to regulate retail or wholesale milk prices. He also pointed out that the compact would work within the existing Federal framework, saying the compact builds on the Federal milk marketing order system, it doesn't replace it.

Dr. John Adams, director of milk safety and animal health for the National Milk Producers Federation in Arlington, Virginia gave an overview of the national outlook and legislative and regulatory update for the industry.

Doctor Adams informed the group that Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman announced on Monday the Department of Agriculture will attempt to stay and appeal the November 3 ruling by U.S. district judge David Doty of Minneapolis that enjoins the secretary from enforcing existing class I differentials in certain Federal milk marketing order areas. If a stay is granted, USDA could continue to enforce class I differential in all Federal milk orders during the appeals process.

Adams said, "We are in transition from a period where we had increased government control to a period where we have less. We are rapidly moving toward a globalized market." He said that retaining the order system, with the USDA pursuing the milk marketing order reforms from the '96 Farm Bill are a part of the solution to the current dairy situation.

Other facets of the solution he proposed included cutting costs and liabilities and enhancing quality and consistency on the farm, expanding exports by cutting world subsidies, aggressively pursuing the World Trade Organization complaint against Canada, and utilizing the DEIP, and being prepared for emergencies. He said a greater amount of trade equals a greater risk in importing animals, and also in exporting them. This would increase the likelihood of an animal health or disease emergency. He advocated supporting development of a National Animal Health Emergency plan to deal with some of the potential scenarios. "The USDA is regionalizing the world under GATT for risk so we're not looking at the world country by country, but by the ability to export on a region by region basis," he said.

Dr. Brian Perkins from Dairy Management Services, Inc. in Vermont talked to the group on building design and remodeling. "I spend 90-95% of my consulting time on farms dealing with cow comfort," he said. "On 99 out of 100 farms, nutrition isn't the answer; cow comfort, cow environment, and cow handling are what really makes the milk," he stressed.

Dr. Bill Prolop, DVM from Attica Veterinary Associates in New York talked on working in a team attitude. He said herd expansion should be preceded by profitability, not be used as a means of achieving profitability. He said expansion should involve an "advisory team of players" with specialties in differing aspects of faming. "By working together, the strength of the group is amplified," according to Dr. Prokop.

FULLTIME™ HAS TOP HERD WORKING OVERTIME.

Five years ago, Jacob Tanis believed "corn silage is corn silage," recalls Russ Judy, his Young's nutritionist. Then Tanis of Centre Hall, PA, tried Cargill FQ silage hybrids and increased milk production by 6,000 pounds per cow over a four-year period. Now he's taken another step to higher-quality feed with FullTime™ forage from Cargill.

Thanks to feeding high-quality silage and other good management practices, the Tanis herd last year was the state's top milk-producing herd, with a herd average of 31,393 pounds, according to DHIA data and was rated the highest for type in its size range by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.[1]

When Judy suggested that Tanis try new Cargill FullTime forage, he was receptive. He was sold on Cargill hybrids and he trusted Judy's judgment.

Tanis gives Judy a lot of credit for his success with FullTime forage. "Russ does a good job of helping me feed my herd," Tanis says.

His confidence proved well-founded in 1996. Tanis saw a milk production increase of 6 pounds per cow per day with 96 cows on test with FullTime forage. There also was a noticeable improvement in the body condition of the cows, Tanis says.

FullTime™ clocks 7.2-lb. increase in MSU study. The big difference between FullTime™ forage and conventional corn hybrids is their relative level of digestible fiber. Digestible fiber is a primary factor influencing milk production. FullTime forage contains nearly 40 percent less indigestible lignin. Cows fed diets containing this new forage product consumed more dry matter and produced more milk. In two university studies[2] cows fed FullTime forage consumed up to 8 percent more dry matter and produced up to 7.2 more pounds of milk per day. And body condition scores were maintained or improved.

Tanis planted 10 acres of FullTime forage in 1996, 20 acres in 1997 and intends to plant 30 to 35 acres next year.

This year, FullTime forage yielded as well as – or better than – other silage corn despite extremely dry weather, Tanis says. He estimates production at 15 to 20 tons per acre.

"FullTime forage can give top returns with best management practices, and obviously Mr. Tanis gave it close attention," comments Dan Froehlich, Cargill agronomic services manager

Dr. Froehlich recommends that dairymen plant FullTime forage after soils have thoroughly warmed up. "You should expect late-season growth spurts with FullTime, so be sure there's plenty of nitrogen available, perhaps by side-dressing. And be sure to plan harvesting based strictly on percent moisture content – 66 to 70 percent for bunker silos," he advises.

"I'm extremely pleased with FullTime forage. I've never fed silage that I could get as much milk out of," Tanis says. "I would recommend it to any producer who wants to produce milk cost-effectively."

Maybe it's time you took a closer look. Cows that consumed FullTime forage in a high-forage diet produced as much as or more fat-corrected milk than cows on normal corn silage in a high-grain diet, says Ed Nimtz, Cargill forage product manager. "We believe dairymen like Jake Tanis will demonstrate to the industry that FullTime can increase your income per acre by increasing the amount of milk you get per pound of feed. FullTime forage, when properly managed, has the potential for a 5 to 1 return on investment. Even a one-pound increase in milk production will cover the increased investment for FullTime forage," Nimtz says.

Jacob Tanis, left, used to believe silage was just silage according to Russ Judy, right, Young's nutritionist.

York 4-H Dairy Scholarship Awarded

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) – Out of love for their son and a desire to keep his memory alive, a York County couple has awarded the first York 4-H Dairy Scholarship from a memorial fund established in his name.

Justin LoBianco was just 24 years old when he was killed tragically in a tractor accident last year. Though the young man had never been a 4-H member, he loved farming so much that his parents, Beth and Rick LoBianco, suggested that memorial contributions in lieu of flowers could be made to the York County 4-H Clubs. From that memorial fund, interest generated has been designated to award a scholarship annually to a deserving 4-H'er for education in cattle breeding and genetics.

Kristina McElwain was named the scholarship's first recipient as the highlight of the county dairy clubs' annual dinner and awards banquet, held November 21 at the 4-H Center. She plans to use the award to pursue a course in artificial insemination through Genex sire cooperative. The 16-year-old 4-H member owns six head of Jerseys and Holsteins, as well as a few pigs. She is a junior studying vocational-agriculture at Kennard-Dale High School and vice president of the school's FFA chapter.

"I'm interested in cattle genetics, and breeding them artificially is more cost effective if you can do it yourself," said Kristina. "I've seen through showing cattle how well the daughters of certain sires do and how a herd can be improved with careful genetic mating."

The Dan and Patty McElwain family operates a 40-head milking string at New Park. Kristina plans to use the A.I. skills she will learn in helping to breed and improve the family herd as well as her own show string. The award was presented to Kristina based on an essay she wrote explaining how it would benefit her education and interest in dairying.

"Justin liked farming and he just loved cows," said Rick LoBionco in explanation of why the couple want his memory to live on by helping other dairy youth. Although he had completed a degree in biology at Loyola College, Rick preferred farming as a career. As a youth, he had helped part time at Perrydell Farm, York, then went to work for the dairy operation full time after completing his degree. He was very interested in genetics, a love his parents feel can continue through the lives of other York County dairy youngsters.

"Justin was young and 4-H'ers are young people. We hope in this way, the scholarship can keep on as a perpetual thing, and maybe someday be expanded," explained his father following the presentation.

Each of the county's three dairy clubs named outstanding members during the awards program, based on criteria that included project books and participation. Central Dairy Club selected Jamie Welsh as its outstanding rookie and, in a tie, presented Terri Johnson and Cory Thompson duplicate honors as outstanding junior members. Southwest Dairy Club named Lee Bosley its outstanding junior member. Intermediate honors winner was Jacob Smith and Daphne Doll was the senior outstanding member. Also saluted by the Southwest club was its graduating members, Dixie Doll and Greg Walker, and leaders Darla Doll and Joann Lucabaugh.

Two dairy club leaders were awarded recognition for service, one a "rookie" and another with a longer tenure. Doug Kilgore, Airville, was saluted as a first-year leader, while Barb Marks, Airville, was honored for 15 years as a 4-H dairy advisor. Both are leaders with the Milk and Money club.

Bouquet Receives Second National Title

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — On Nov. 11, Robert Ness of Howick, Quebec, Canada, was put to the task in Louisville, Kentucky, as he judged the 157 Ayrshires that paraded through the ring at the Southern National Ayrshire Show.

With one 1997 national grand champion title on her resume, Sunny-Acres J.J. Bouquet knew the way to the champion circle to collect her second title of the year. Judge Ness selected this first place aged cow as the grand champion of the show.

"Bouquet" is an Excellent-92 Bonnie Brae Jaye daughter with records to 20,150M 5.2% 1,046F 3.2% 650P at 5-07 in 350 days.

"Sunny" and her owner, Dr. Douglas Evans of Georgetown, New York, received the grand champion banner and trophy sponsored by the Kentucky Ayrshire Club.

Cedarvale Mandate Bonita, the first place 4-year-old, was selected by Judge Ness to receive the reserve grand champion banner. "Bonita" is a Flowerland BBK Mandate daughter and is owned by Ray and Lynn Lee of Smyrna, Tennessee.

No stranger to the ring, the first place senior yearling, Emerald-Farms Lasso Kite, prevailed over the other heifer class winners to be chosen junior champion of the Central National Ayrshire Junior Show. "Kite" is owned by Logan and Regan Fenton of Winchester, Ohio.

Receiving the reserve junior champion rosette was the Cottrell's Jaye Jade, the first place intermediate yearling heifer. Sired by Bonnie Brae Jaye, "Jade" is owned by Pamella Jeffrey of Wakefield, Rhode Island.

Laroche Jo Carie 2Z was the total performance winner of the show. This aged cow is sired by Bonnie Brae Jordan and is owned by Brian and Kylene De Ath of Veedersburg, Indiana.

The total performance award is presented to the owner of the top female, 3-years-old and over, in the show. The award is based on a 100 point total, with 50 points on the placing of the animal and 50 points on her production.

In the state herd contest, Indiana took home the first place ribbon, while Maryland placed second and Missouri was third.

The Tom Fenton Family, Emerald Farms, of Winchester, Ohio, took home the premier breeder and the premier exhibitor banners.

The De Ath Family of Veedersburg, Indiana, received a briefcase sponsored by the North American Livestock International Exposition for being selected as the Ayrshire herdsmanship award winner.

The Wetherell Dairy Trophy for highest-placing junior exhibitor went to Phil Rauch, Billings, Mo. Rauch's entry, Sancrest Sparkler Sami Jo, placed fourteenth overall.

The Pioneer Farm Trophy for the animal with the highest actual pounds protein, placing in the top 20 went to Toptin Iris of SSF. In her lactation at 3-1 "Iris" made 569 lbs. protein. She is bred and owned by Jennifer Luchsinger, Syracuse, N.Y.

The Jersey Jug Futurity began in 1954 when 24 females were nominated for the show. In 1956, the Jug was given a wider scope when it moved from Delaware, Ohio, to the Ohio State Fair. Then in 1959, the Jersey Jug became a national event when it came under the sponsorship of the American Jersey Cattle Association.

Animals are nominated as calves with hopes that in three years they will be a winner. The total nomination fee is $56 during the three-year process and the exhibitor is guaranteed that money in premiums if the animal is shown in e Jersey Jug. This year there was $8,550 to be divided between the 28 final entries.

David Jones, Yale, Ok., served as the judge and Bill Taylor, Marcellus, N.Y., was the consultant.

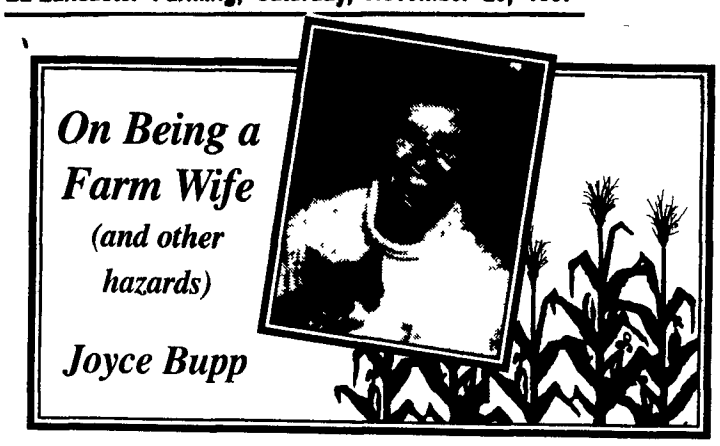
Quality – Value – Service



For some Pennsylvanians (and-out-of-staters), Monday is the equivalent of Christmas, Easter, Memorial Day, and July 4 all rolled into one.

They are at least a part of the million or so white-tailed deer hunters that will hit the mountains, woods and fields of our Commonwealth before daylight, lugging along enough weapons, ammunition, and candy bars to outfit a medium-sized army. As in any combat effort, there will be winners and losers, the winners primarily being those who bag their quarry and the losers those who don't.

Unless you're a deer, which tends to make one look at the whole issue from a different perspective, for sure.

Or, possibly, a farm wife, whose hubby has taken one of his rare, and undoubtedly well-deserved, days off to participate in this tradition, leaving you to help make certain the daily chores get done.

Yes, I'm sure you al know where we're headed with this....

Memories of last year's opening day of deer season still linger, adding to a mental tapestry of bits and pieces of past, goofy, opening-day deer seasons. While The Farmer only occasionally makes it out for opening day, a few of those have left indelible tracts in my mind.

It was a raw, cold and pouring-rain Sunday that sent our hunters off to the hills last year. I recall returning to the house at lunch after a long morning at the barn to change into warm, dry clothes. Morning milking had not gone well. An equipment problem had shut down the milking system, delaying the whole process while we called for emergency service. Bless our repairman who found his early Sunday morning schedule altered that day. Late morning, the system back in order, cows milked and chores nearly completed, The Farmer departed.

Late afternoon found our crew back in the barn, where milking went well. For about a half-hour. Then the system shut down. Several times before we were even half finished. Every time the system shuts itself down, we lose several gallons of milk. Once again, emergency Sunday service was summoned, amidst my supreme Frustration that the repair had not been properly handled earlier.

My mistake. The repair had been properly handled. Another gliche had fouled the system.

Running late again. And still raining. Odds that a cow would drop a calf in some sloppy wet corner of the barnyard were high–and one did. Except it was not a tame, old cow but one of the most skittish, nervous heifers to come out of the herd in a long time. One of our employees lugged the absolutely-filthy, cold, shivering calf to the milk house, then corralled the upset, jittery heifer in one of the warm, dry maternity pens. Like most babies, the calf was most unappreciative of the bath I gave it and returned the favor in the process.

But he needed a boost of warn, antibody-rich colostrum immediately–and this heifer didn't appear too cooperative. After thawing some of the supply of colostrum always kept on had, and with the help nearby just in case I edged into the pen to feed him. Mama, vengeful at the indignities of having her baby temporarily stolen and herself confine to a pen, wore a wary, mean look. After a couple of her vocal warnings, head shakings, and threats, what cow sense I have told me to head for the step-through exit. She rammed me on my way out. With help to distract her momentarily, we dragged the shivering infant to a safer pen, where he finally was warmed and fed.

So if farm wives and lots of non-farm wives of deer hunters wear looks of dread in their eyes this weekend, understand that there are justifiable reasons. For we know the moment those guys leave home, the odds of a direct hit by Murphy's law of mechanical gliches, and/or bad weather increase dramatically.

The Farmer will likely not make this year's opening day, but for those of you whos hubbies do go, remember: if all else fails, you can join the hunt. Except, you might call it Christmas shopping.

And you don't have to gut your prize after you bag it.

ADADC Redesigns Dairy Cases

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — One of the largest supermarket chains in the northeast area, Grand Union Supermarkets, has agreed to participate in the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc.'s (ADADC's) Category Management program. Representing nearly seven percent of the market share, Grand Union has a large ACV (All Commodities Volume), which means their stores are responsible for selling a large portion of the goods in their respective market area.

What does this mean for dairy farmers? Increased milk sales! "We generally see an increase in milk sales of about 6 percent once a store resets its dairy case; so the addition of such a powerful player in the Category Management program is good news for dairy farmers in ADADC's market area," says Frank Kelczewski, category management supervisor for the New Jersey territory.

Over the next few months, ADADC staff will obtain sales data from Grand Union to determine the best selling products in the chain's dairy case. ADADC uses that information to design an improved dairy case layout which allocates more space for the most popular selling items — namely milk!

The Weaver family, from left, Regina, 9; Lisa, 5; Joel, 15; Kendra, 18; parents Keith and Joanne, and Andrew, 12, own a poultry and a hog operation in Reinholds. Kendra is the Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador, the position previously known as poultry queen.

Egg-Breaking Research And Speaking Expertise Qualifies Kendra Weaver As Poultry Ambassador

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

REINHOLDS (Lancaster Co.) — When the Lancaster County Poultry Association wanted to select a poultry ambassador to be a spokesperson for the industry, they chose Kendra Weaver.

No wonder. Although only 18 years old, Kendra excels in speaking and has won local, regional, and state awards for FFA public speaking contests. In addition, she has placed first in the Lancaster Science and Engineering Fair for her poultry-related projects three years in a row. Last week, Kendra placed second in national FFA competition for a poultry-related science project.

Kendra Weaver seems a natural spokesperson for the Lancaster County Poultry Association, a position that requires speaking ability and knowledge of the industry. She won local, regional, and state public speaking events and a national award for her science fair project, which focused on egg shell quality.

Poised and articulate, Kendra is equally at ease whether she is talking about school or the scientific experiments for which she won a national award.

Her most recent science fair project was "Quality of Egg Shells—The Calcium Connection." In her experiment, Kendra fed a varied calcium diet to 12 chickens for 13 weeks.

"The less calcium each chicken received, the easier it was to break the eggs, which proved the importance of calcium to produce harder egg shells," Kendra said.

The daughter of Keith and JoAnne Weaver, Kendra helps on the family farm in Reinholds. The Weavers raise 30,000 broilers and 500 head of finishing pigs on their 26-acre farm. They are in the process of converting the hog operation to a nursery to eliminate odors because of several surrounding developments.

Siblings include Joel, 15; Andrew, 12; Regina, 9; and Lisa, 5.

The Weavers are fairly new on the farming scene. They moved on the farm about eight years ago after Keith was appointed overseer of the Ephrata Mennonite Church District.

"I needed a good part-time job that allowed me time to do church duties," Keith said.

He quit a stable full-time job and sold their home in the village of Reinholds to purchase a nearby 26-acre farm that needed lots of work.

Keith recalls that he didn't know anything about chickens before venturing into it, but he was assured by a Pennfield representative that a non-farming background could work in his favor. "Too many think they know how to care for chickens when they don't," he said in reference to a person who has grown up around them. "Just do what we say, and you'll be a success," they assured him.

That's exactly what Keith did. "It's worked out well," he said. "While I'm attending meetings, the chickens are home growing."

Keith said that it's because of his wife that combining the two duties works out. Joanne adjusts the ventilation if the weather conditions change, and is able to fill in for any care needed.

"I couldn't do it without her," Keith said.

Two years later, the Weavers renovated a barn to start finishing pigs.

"Pigs are more personable than chickens," he said. Although the family enjoy working with pigs, they are in the process of changing over to a nursery.

"We have a problem—the smell. We are between two housing developments and want to be sensitive to our neighbors."

A swine nursery would emit less odors than the full-grown facilities. They plan for segregated early weaning and the building would be thoroughly disinfected every eight weeks when a batch leaves.

Financing is approved and contractors are scheduled. Facilities should be ready by January.

For five weeks during the summer, Kendra attended the Penn State Governor's School of Ag Sciences. While there, Kendra worked with a graduate student on culturing cartilage cells with the ultimate goal of transplanting them into arthritis patients.

While the project showed that cells in a constantly spinning state were more life-like and stayed alive longer than those in a dish, the experiment needs to be perfected. But the opportunity to work in a lab with sophisticated equipment, real scientists, and be part of scientific research, thrilled Kendra.

For her next science project, Kendra plans to do something related to bone structure in leg problems, and the effect of phosphorus and vitamin D in a chicken's diet.

Despite successes in science, Kendra plans to select an unusual combination of courses to pursue in college next year. She wants to combine her love of English with agriculture and mission work in a third world country.

Kendra spent the summer of 1996 with a Summer Training Action Team, which after one month of training in Harrisburg, flew to Puerto Rico to construct a school for two months.

"Coming from a small family farm encouraged my interest in agriculture, and watching my parents live out their life influenced by desire to become involved in missions," Kendra said.

Kendra recalls that watching her parents work through the faith process in their lives inspires her.

"I was only 10 years old when my dad left a good job to buy a 'rinky' farm because he was ordained to the ministry."

After the property was purchased but before the family moved to the farm, the double-story chicken house burned to the ground. It was a difficult time for the family.

"Our lifestyle changed, but I learned to love it," Kendra said of the family's transition from town to country. "My parents have set a good example of their faith and love."

She credits her parents for allowing her to make many of her own decisions rather than forcing them upon her.

At church, Kendra co-teaches a Sunday school class, helps with the children's praise program, and participates on the worship team by singing and playing the piano. She has held the office of secretary and vice president of the church youth group. She coordinated the youth group's involvement in a 30-hour famine in which they raised $2000 for World Vision, a ministry to feed children in third-war countries.

Although she lives in the Cocalico school district, Kendra attends Ephrata High School because she wants to participate in FFA, and Cocalico doesn't offer it.

After terms as vice president and as president of her FFA chapter, Kendra serves as student adviser.

At Ephrata High School, Kendra is yearbook editor for the second year and is also the newspaper editor. She is vice president of the National Honor Society and played soccer for two years.

Her schedule doesn't allow too much time for regular chores, but whenever possible she helps with the daily workload and helps clean out the chicken house and sort hogs for market.

Kendra and her brother raises beef cows and 13 sheep. They share in the labor of feeding and maintaining the fence. Kendra started out with one cow five years ago and now has five.

Kendra also has an unusual hobby—raising worms. It was a specialty animal project that her ag teacher recommended. The worms are raised in two compost boxes in the barn. The worms are fed table scraps and will be marketed for fishing worms.

Kendra is organizing a stream bank project to clean up a one-mile strip of the Indian Run Creek. The FFA and Young Farmers Association will plant vegetation to purify waters along the banks, add stones for cattle crossings, and put up fencing. The Chesapeake Bay Foundation helps fund the project, which requires the cooperation of farmers whose land borders the stream.

Here is one of Kendra's favorite recipes that she shares to encourage people to eat poultry dishes.

CHICKEN DIVINE CASSEROLE

2 10-ounce packages broccoli
4-6 chicken breasts, cooked and chunked
2 cans cream of chicken soup
½ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 can mushrooms, optional
½ cup corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cheddar cheese

Layer broccoli on bottom of baking dish. Place chicken on top. Combine soup, mayonnaise, and lemon juice and pour on top. Add mushrooms and cheese. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes.

Regina watches as her sister Lancaster Poultry Ambassador Kendra Weaver fills in appointments for upcoming assignments promoting the poultry industry.

Make Sure Young Deer Hunters Know Safety Precautions

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you're taking a youngster out deer hunting for the first time this December, make sure he or she understands some important safety rules, says Earle Robbins, extension agent in Tioga County. Robbins is a Pennsylvania Game Commision volunteer, a hunting/trapping education instructor, and state 4-H shooting sports coordinator for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"Young people handling firearms need to develop some important habits," says Robbins.

Robbins offers these hunting safety tips:

- Make sure firearms are in good working order, and barrels and chambers are free of obstructions. Guns must be sighted in properly and have the proper sized ammunition.
- Familiarize yourself with the hunting site, so that you will know what's beyond your target. "Walk through the hunting grounds before deer season starts," Robbins says. "When you know the area, you can keep livestock and buildings out of the line of fire."
- Make sure every member of the group wears a combined minimum of 250 square inches of hunter orange on the head, chest and back.
- Assume every firearm is loaded. "When you pick up a gun, the first thing you should do is check it for ammunition," Robbins says. "When you pass a firearm to someone else, leave the action open so there is no chance of it firing."
- Unload guns and leave the actions open when you are transporting them to and from the hunting area.
- Always keep track of where your gun is pointed, and keep your finger off the trigger until it's time to fire at your target. Never aim your gun at anything you do not plan to shoot.
- Know the location of all of the members of your hunting group. "Before separating, discuss where each hunter will be standing on watch and who will be walking through the woods," Robbins says.
- Don't shoot until you're absolutely sure of your target. Shooting at a sound or an undefined shape is inviting tragedy. "During deer season, this also means determining whether the deer is a buck or a doe," Robbins says.
- Unload your gun before climbing trees, scaling fences and logs, or jumping over ditches.
- If you have shot a deer and are preparing to dress it out, don't forget to unload your gun.
- Never engage in horseplay using a gun.

Youngsters can learn more about hunter safety and shooting sports in programs available at schools and through 4-H.

HANDLE VENISON WITH CARE

To some people, venison is a gift of joy. During this hunting season, there are many people who are looking forward to enjoying a delicious venison for months to come. Let's review some basic tips to help make sure you have the tastiest and safest venison possible.

A deer shot in an unsuspecting moment is more tender and will be less "gamey" in flavor than a deer that is chased. Immediate and careful field dressing, immediate removal of all hair near exposed flesh, and prompt skinning are essential. When dressing a deer, be careful not to cut into the musk glands on the lower belly.

Venison is a good choice for healthy eating. A three-ounce piece of venison steak provides only three grams of fat. In comparison, a three-ounce piece of lean flank steak provides 13 grams of fat, and a three-ounce section of T-bone steak boasts 21 grams of fat. Cholesterol varies less between beef and venison. Both provide 85 to 95 milligrams of cholesterol per three-ounce serving. Cholesterol content per serving will diminish significantly only if you happened to shoot an old, well-traveled deer.

Venison is a delicacy that requires special treatment in the kitchen as well as in the field. Although game is handled much like the lean meat of its domestic counterparts, a few helpful hints can make the difference between a strong, "gamey" flavor and a delicious taste-tempting treat.

Game animals lead active, vigorous lives that keep their muscles firm and their bodies relatively lean. This makes their meat tougher and drier than domestic meat and poultry. One way to tenderize game meat is to cut the long muscles fibers by pounding, scoring, or grinding. The tissues also may be softened by marinating with an acid such as lemon or tomato juice, French dressing, vinegar, or wine. A third method of tenderization is to cook the meat under pressurized heat. Game fat presents a special problem in cooking and storing. It turns rancid rapidly and should be trimmed closely before cooking and storing.

Game fat also has a strong flavor and solidifies quickly-more reasons to remove it. Basting the meat during cooking in its own juice or with a special marinade or sauce helps to keep the meat moist.

Never serve game rare or overcooked. Rare game is likely to harbor food-poisoning bacteria. Overcooked game will be safe to eat, but it will probably be tough and dry. Most sources recommend cooking game slowly at low temperatures (300 to 350° Fahrenheit) to reduce shrinkage and retain food value and flavor.

Cook roasts to an internal temperature of 170° Fahrenheit. Since all game has a dark surface when roasted and may appear more done than it is, use a thermometer to determine internal temperature. For safety's sake, serve all game dishes hot-above 140° Fahrenheit-, and keep them cold-below 40° Fahrenheit.

Store leftover game in the refrigerator in a closed, air-tight container for use within two days. Freeze leftovers for longer storage.

Beef With Pizzazz!

The meat industry has taken an aggressive role in working to solve the basic issue of delivering products to consumers that maintain a high nutrient content, yet have lower levels of fat. Leaner animals are produced as a result of advanced feeding, genetics, and management practices.

Leaner cuts are also being provided for the consumer because of closer trimming at the retail level.

To meet the growing consumer demand for lower fat products, the beef industry has teamed up with reserachers to develop low-fat ground beef, resulting in a 3-ounce serving of low-fat ground beef being 50 percent lower in fat content, without loss of flavor and texture. They have the similar juicy eating properties of higher-fat products, yet satisfy the consumers desire for leaner, more nutritious foods.

DECORATIONS FROM THE GARDEN

Decorate your home with holiday greens from your garden

Greens from your garden often remain fresh or longer and provide variety for wreaths and holiday table arrangements.

Choose evergreens with berries, pruning off branches from yew, Japanese and American holly, juniper, false-cypress, arborvitae or red cedar. This pruning during the holiday season won't stop new growth from the tips, but it will give you a more compact plant next year.'

White pine, Douglas fir, and Norway spruce are also sources of greenery. However, use only the inside branches. Select and remove them carefully to avoid spoiling the shape of the tree. Pine and spruce do not produce new growth from the cut tips.

Cones are a big holiday-decorating plus. Your older pine, spruce and fir trees will supply cones to decorate wreaths and arrangements.

Fruited shrubs provide a beautiful trim for holiday decoration, but many of the berry-producing shrubs have soft fruit which is eaten by birds or frozen before Christmas.

However several American holly (Ilex opaca) varieties have beautiful berries and foliage at Christmas time. The winterberry holly (Ilex verticillata) is a native shrub which drops its leaves in autumn, leaving beautiful berries along the twigs. Ilex v. "Compacta" reaches three to four feet tall when it gets four years old, is good for foundation plantings and low compact shrubs.

Plants these shrubs in groups with at lease one male plant included. They grow well near ponds or in poorly drained soil.

Other plant stems used for decorating include ornamental grasses and herbs, like rosemary, lavender, rue, thyme and bed straw are traditional holiday fare.

Rosemary (Rosemarinus officinalis) often is used along with holly, ivy, and mistletoe for decorating. Rue (Ruta graucolins) nicknamed 'the herb of grace' has unusual blue-green foliage and a distinctive fragrance.

Thyme (Thymus sp.) invigorates the senses with a faint clove after-taste and the white flowers of bedstraw (gallium verum) bloom in mid summer. The common English name is "our lady's bedstraw."

Hers; additional decorating tips.

- Use the bluish berries on a silvery 'bloom' on some junipers. Add boxwood, holly, and rhododendrons for accents to decorations. Use a antitranspirat spray to prevent broadleaf plants from drying out.
- Pines have a soft feathery texture. Pines do not drop their needles as fast as spruce and hemlock. Use nuts and acorns on wired fresh wreaths. Barberry, oregon-holly grape, English ivy, bittersweet, periwinkle, and even deciduous shrubs provide interesting stems, large spines or bright leaves or fruit.

Cumberland Farm Women Name Duncan President

From the left, the Cumberland County Farm Women Society honors long time members Dickie Strohm, who holds her 90-year pin (for age), and Mary Sunday, who is 98.

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) - Donna Duncan isn't wasting any time in her new office as president of the Cumberland County Farm Women.

The Carlisle woman, who was elected to her post at the group's 58th convention at the Best Western Inn here, already has sent out surveys to all 22 of the active groups within the organization.

She said her aim is to find out what local Farm Women members want to see happen in the coming year. She herself will be the office for two years.

Duncan, whose husband Duane is chief agent with the Cumberland County Extension Office, is no stranger to agriculture or to the Farm Women organization.

Her first encounter with the group came in 1969, when a friend, Frances Cornman, invited her to a meeting of the local Group 5, Duncan said.

She said she enjoyed the fellowship she found there so much that she immediately joined.

The organization was a social group then and remains so today, Duncan said, but it also promotes the love of family and of agriculture and charitable giving.

In the last 28 years, Duncan has served in every office in the county's Farm Women organization. She also is a member of the Letort Quilters, and of the Mary and Martha Circle of the Allison United Methodist Church of Carlisle. She is an avid gardener as well.

As president, her main duty will be to preside over the county group's six business meetings each year for the organization's approximately 300 members. Also, she will represent Cumberland County at board meetings of the state Farm women.

Duncan's top aide will be Betty Wert, who was elected as the county group's vice president. The second vice president is Norma Greider.

Betty Garman was elected recording secretary, Dorothy Dunkleberger was chosen as corresponding secretary, ad Sarah Nealy was elected treasurer.

Duncan succeeds Fay Stare as Cumberland Farm Women president.

"As I pass the president's pin to Donna today, I trust that she finds the same joy as the rest of us had in our association with each one of you." Stare said in her final message as president. "My prayers go out to you as you continue the journey of personal and Farm Women life in helping those of our number who are less fortunate."

Longevity also was recognized during the convention as some of the group's most senior members were honored.

Dickie Strohm received her 90-year pin and Mary Sunday was recognized for reaching the age of 98. Both women are charter members of the Cumberland Farm Women and in fact are the last two surviving charter members. Both belong to Group 1.

Giants, Buffalo Bills Score Breakfast Touchdown

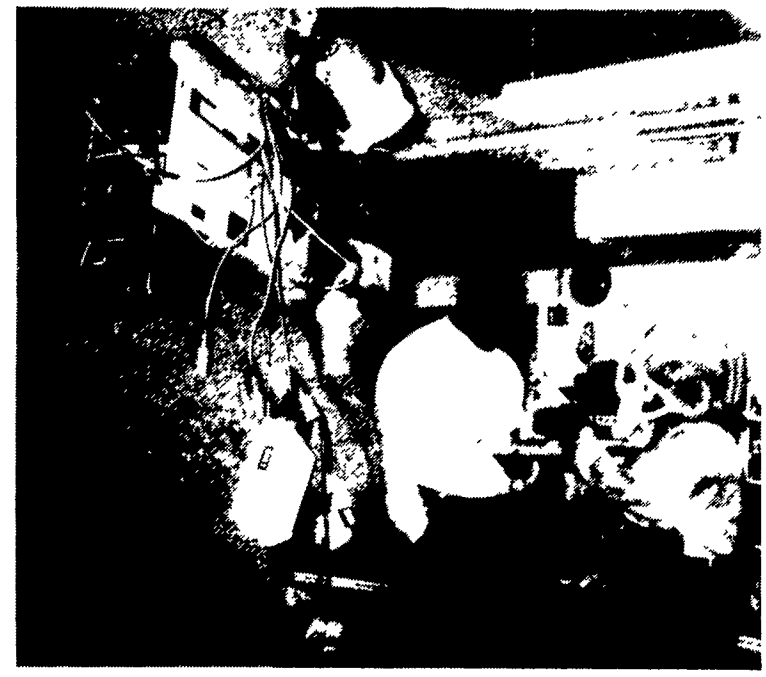
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — For dairy farmers in ADADC's marketing area, breakfast really is the most important meal of the day — school breakfast. That's because milk is a required component of this U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) program. If every child who ate lunch in school also ate breakfast, school milk sales would increase by 20 million cartons!

To increase participation in this program, ADADC staff has expanded on the relationships built last year with the New York Giants and the Buffalo Bills. In addition to offering copies of special, limited-edition posters as prizes to students and arranging for PSAs of players encouragiong students to eat school breakfast to be aired throughout ADADC's marketing area, in-school promotions were held this fall to encourage more students to eat breakfast at school.

A visit to Roberto Clemente Elementary School in Paterson, New Jersey, by Giants defensive end Michael Strahan generated stories in key local media such as Superstation UPN 9 NJ, the largest broadcast television station in New Jersey, statewide cable station News 12 NJ, and the North Jersey Herald and News newspaper.

ADADC arranged for Strahan to visit as a special recognition for the school's increase in program participation. Now, almost all of the school's 400 students (ages K-3) eat breakfast on site. A visit by Giants teammate offensive linesman Rob Zatechka to JHS #45 school in New York City's Harlem more than quadrupled attendance for that day — with over 130 students attending a program normally utilized by approximately 30 students.

In the Buffalo area, students who attended breakfast had the chance to win game tickets and sports memorabilia. Plans for a player visit are still in the works for later in the season. To make parents and students aware of breakfast programs in the Wilkes Barre/Scranton (Pennsylvania) area, ADADC's Nutrition Education Specialist Pam Rusnack was featured on WBRE-TV (NBC) to talk about the availability and convenience of school breakfast programs.



Increasing participation in the school breakfast program is just one way ADADC works to increase milk sales in schools. Here N.Y. Giants player Michael Strahan explains to a reporter how a simple breakfast consisting of milk, fruit, and cereal can give students the energy they need to perform in the classroom and on the playing field.

Do ducks' feet get cold?
Yes, but ducks and other cold-weather birds have special ways to cope with the low temperatures, so they don't seem to mind the chilly feet.
A duck's downy feathers and high pulse rate help it keep a normal body temperature of about 104 degrees Fahrenheit, no matter the weather. But on the coldest of winter days, its feet and legs might be just above freezing. If your hands were that cold, the rest of your body would soon be cold, too. But these winter-loving birds have a high-tech circulatory system to prevent that from happening.
In many birds, the arteries and veins in their legs are so close they touch. Arteries carry blood away from the heart, and veins carry blood back to the heart. The blood moving from the bird's body to its feet is 104F. But, the blood in the veins of the foot is normally cool.
That means as the warm blood moves towards the feet in the arteries, the close-lying veins cool the blood. Likewise, as the cool blood moves from the foot back towards the bird's body, heat from the warm arteries warms the blood back to body temperature.
Birds can also constrict the blood vessels in their feet to reduce the amount of blood flow there. The less blood exposed to the unfeathered feet and legs, the warmer the bird's body stays!

Breakfast Participation

TOWSON, MD - A 25 percent increase in school milk sales and a 6 percent increase in school breakfast participation resulted from "That Milk Thing's" assembly tour in five Wicomico County, MD elementary schools. The Southeast United Dairy Industry Association (SUDIA), the Maryland Food Committee, and the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) joined forces to Wicomico county children during National School Lunch. The assembly featuring "That Milk Thing" teaches children about the importance of a healthy breakfast, choosing foods from the five food groups, and drinking milk.

Along with the assembly program in five schools, the three organizations, along with the Wicomico Board of Education, sponsored a district-wide "That Milk Thing" promotion for all 8,332 Wicomico County elementary students. MAMMA, SUDIA, and MD Food Committee provided prize incentives, such as Cal Ripken, Jr. growth posters, for children who came to school breakfast and drank milk. Nutritional education materials, including the popular "Make Mine Milk" video, were given to all Wicomico elementary schools.

Ida's Notebook

by Ida Risser

On a recent rainy day, I sat down to read one of my diaries from the 1950s. At that time we had four small children. They were from three to 11 years of age.

I reread this diary in order to tell the grandchildren what their parents did when they were the same age as the grandchildren are now. The older boys loaded manure by hand into a spreader and they helped to bale hay. The younger ones brought the cows up from the meadow.

At that time we had a beach and a meadow that attracted people over the weekends. They came to swim, fish, picnic, and go boating. We asked the large sum of 25 cents if they drove their cars down into the meadow. Our boys sold fishing worms that they gathered when we plowed the field.

Even then I was taking the boys to Little League baseball and the oldest girl to violin lessons in Lancaster. They worked together to wash the 4-H calves and to build a playhouse under a nearby shed. The boys fed corn to the pigs and the girls baked cakes. At that time my husband made many freezers of ice cream for social events. Every year we held a Square Dance in our barn in May and the children helped to clean and sweep it.

The boys that got my letters live in the suburbs of Atlanta, Georgia, and of Richmond, Virginia. Their life is full I'm sure but it is a far cry from the life on a dairy farm 40 years ago. There is no telling how different their grandchildrens' lives will be 40 years from now. We can always hope it will be productive.

'From Field To Table' Offers Tastes Of Maryland's Bounty

Sharon Fritz was chair of the Carroll County Farm Bureau women while the cookbook was being written. Here, Sharon and her daughter Jessica, the county farm queen, enjoy the newly published cookbook during Jessica's weekend trip home from the University of Maryland. The Fritz family milks 69 registered Holsteins on their farm at New Windsor.

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md.– For those who collect cookbooks, a new not-to-be-missed book has just come out, chock-full of recipes gathered from some of the most accomplished cooks around farm women.

"From The Field To The Table" a collaborative effort by members of the Carroll County Farm Bureau women's committee, presents 285 recipes ranging from old-time favorites to modern specialty dishes that the farm women of Carroll County most enjoy preparing for their families.

The recipes have been uniquely arranged in a format that pays homage to the county's agricultural producers. Each chapter contains recipes grouped according to the commodity they use. For example, the first chapter, "Aquaculture", consists of seafood recipes, the second, "Beef", features the prime cuts of meat raised and prepared by county beef producers. Dairy, fruit, grain, lamb, pork, poultry, and vegetables make up the other chapters, along with a "Diversified" chapter showcasing farm-raised and wild game, and other alternative crop enterprises.

Each chapter begins with a profile of a county farm family in the business of producing that particular commodity. The farm profiles provide a glimpse not only into the kitchens and recipe boxes of the farm families, but often into the more detailed workings of their operations as well. The interviews paint a picture of producer families eager to share their enthusiasm for the ingredients they grow. And of course, all the recipes are tried and true.

The profiles were written by Joanne Morvay Weant. Each recipe was painstakingly categorized according to its ingredients by Joanne and other members of the committee. Sharon Fritz chaired the women's committee during the time the recipes were collected. Other Carroll County farm women involved in the project include: Joan Myers, Marsha Smith, Eleanor Shipley, Anna Marie Devilbiss, Jean Knill, Mary Sue Harrison, Leona Dell, Barbara Watt, Debbie Hoff, and Sue Myers.

Copies of the cookbooks are available for $7 plus shipping and handling from the Carroll County Farm Bureau, P. O. Box 547, New Windor, MD 21776 or (410) 857-5503.

Here are a few recipes from the cookbook:

Asparagus
(Peggy Horner)

2 pounds asparagus
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/8 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
1 cup sharp cheddar cheese, shredded

Parboil asparagus and drain. Combine soup, mayonnaise, and seasonings. Layer asparagus in casserole dish. Pour soup mixture over top. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 350 oven approximately 30 minutes or until bubbly and cheese is melted. If desired, you can also top with crushed cracker crumbs.

Lemon Pound Cake
(Kelly Myers)

1/2 pound butter
3 cups sugar
3 cups sugar
3 cups cake flour
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
6 eggs - separate,
2 Tablespoons lemon flavoring

Cream sugar and butter until smooth and lemon colored. Add on egg yolk at a time. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add alternately with milk and beat until smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in flour mixture. Add lemon flavoring. Bake one hour at 350. Remove from oven and cool until cold in pan.

Spicy Lamb Stir-Fry
(Nancy and David Greene)

1 pound lamb leg, cut into 1/8" strips
2 Tablespoon lemon juice
2 Tablespoon soy sauce
1 Tablespoon honey
1 1/2 teaspoon minced fresh ginger root or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
2 clove garlic, minced
1/4-1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
2 teaspoon cornstarch
1 Tablespoon water
non-stick cooking spray
1 Tablespoon sesame or vegetable oil
4 cups vegetables*, hot cooked rice (optional)

*suggest vegetables include green onions, mushrooms, red or green pepper, zucchini, yellow squash, carrots, celery, snow peas, water chestnuts, and broccoli. All vegetables should be washed and sliced thin. Can use one package frozen stir-fry vegetables. Increase vegetable cooking time four to five minutes then.

Combine lamb, lemon juice, soy, honey, and seasonings in medium bowl. Cover and refrigerate two hours. In small bowl, blend cornstarch and water until smooth. Set aside. Generously coat a heavy skillet or wok with cooking spray. Add oil and heat over high heat. Add lamb with marinade and stir fry until the meat is no longer pink three to four minutes.

Transfer lamb to another bowl using a slotted spoon. Add vegetables to skillet. Reduce heat to medium-low. Cook until vegetables are crisp-tender - two or three minutes. Stir cornstarch mixture and add to skillet. Cook for 30-60 seconds until sauce turns translucent. Return lamb to skillet. Serve immediately over rice, if desired.

ANSWER — A reader from West Virginia requested a recipe for dirt dessert made with crushed Oreo cookies and butter. Thanks to Mrs. Daniel Yoder, Lewistown, and others for sending recipes.

Dirt Dessert

Filling:
- 12-ounces whipped topping
- 2 packages instant French vanilla pudding
- 3½ cups milk
- 8-ounces cream cheese
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar

Dirt:
- 1 package Oreo cookies, crushed in blender or food processor

Mix together pudding mix with milk. Cream together confectioners' sugar, butter, and cream cheese. Blend in pudding. Using an 8x8-inch glass pan, put ⅓ of dirt in bottom. Layer filling and dirt alternately ending with dirt on top. Chill two hours or more.

Here is one that is served like real dirt complete with flowers and worms from Anna Martin, Denver.

Magic Dirt Cake

- 16-ounce package Oreo cookies
- 8-ounce package cream cheese
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 small packages instant pudding mix
- 3 cups milk
- 12-ounce container whipped topping
- Gummy worms and bugs
- 24-inch silk flower
- Flower box

Line flower box with aluminum foil; set aside. Crush cookies until they resemble dirt. Place 2 or more cups of crumbs in flower box. Set aside. Cream the cheese, butter, sugar, and vanilla together until blended; set aside. Combine pudding mix and milk; fold in whipped topping. Gently fold cheese and pudding mixtures together. Add gummy worms and bugs. Pour the mixture into the flower pot. Top with the remaining cookie crumbs. Cover with foil; refrigerate. When ready to serve, remove foil; top with silk flowers (wrap stems in foil). Display or serve with new gardening tools. Provides about 12 servings.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know what kind of apples to use for apple butter, Fern Freeman of Elliottsburg writes that for many years she used smokehouse apples. One year she tried one kettle made with smokehouse and one made with Grimes Golden, which is her preference. But last fall, she couldn't get grimes golden so she made one kettle made with smokehouse and one with empire. She liked the one made with empire apples better, but all three kinds are very good. Fern said there is no comparison between apple butter made in a copper kettle and that made in an oven.

ANSWER — A reader named Polly wanted a recipe for borscht. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Borscht

Fill a 3-quart kettle ⅔ full of water. Add two chicken legs or a small chunk of beef, ham, or bacon or all three meats in smaller amounts. (When meat is raw, boil it in the water first, if precooked, add the meat at the end).
- 3-4 small carrots, grated
- 1 large onions, diced
- 4-5 medium potatoes, peeled, diced
- ½ pound cabbage, shredded
- 1 small garlic, finely grated
- 1 tablespoon salt or to taste
- 3-4 tablespoons tomato sauce
- 2 medium beets, peeled raw and grated
- 3 tablespoons vinegar

Start by boiling the meat and making a broth. Add carrots and onion. While this boils, peel the potatoes and dice them. Shred the cabbage and add cabbage and potatoes to broth. Add garlic, salt, and pepper. Cook until cabbage is soft and potatoes are soft. Simmer. Meanwhile peel and grate beets. Put in a separate frying pan to steam with vinegar and just a bit of water in the bottom until soft. Add this to the soup and simmer for just a bit more. Dump in a spoonful of mayonnaise or sour cream, and stir.

Most times, the soup is more delicious the second or third day, after flavors mingle.

ANSWER — Here are more crockpot recipes from Tom Anderson, Chestertown, Md. He writes that when cooking soups and stews, he cooks a large quantity and freezes in 2-cup plastic freezer containers. At the end of a long work day or if unexpected company shows up, it doesn't take long to warm up a tub or two in a double boiler and presto ! Supper is on!

He has come up with what he calls a basic recipe, which may be adjusted to suit individual tastes. He uses every meat from beef, deer, bear, wild duck, and—muskrat. Here are his recipes—even the one for muskrat for our more adventuresome readers.

Basic Recipe

For deer and bear, cut off all fat and grissle, leaving about 4 pounds of cut up stew meat. For beef, cut off grissle if any.

In the bottom of the crock pot, slice a medium-size onion. For ducks, 3 sliced carrots instead of onion, and stuff each of two brids with ¼ large onion and potato, and 2 sticks celery, put them on top of the carrots, add 1 cup water, 1 cup white wine, cook on low 7-9 hours).

With the sliced onion in the bottom pot, add ½ can beef broth.

Add one of the following meats:
- 4 pounds beef stew meat
- 4 pounds deer stew meat
- 6 muskrats (depending on the size of the pot)

Mix:
- 3 teaspoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 3 tablespoons catsup
- 2 tablespoons dijon mustard
- ½ can bouillon
- 2 cups Red Burgandy

Mix well, and pour over the meat.

Cover, cook on low 6-8 hours or until meat is tender. When cooking beef or deer, continue on but with muskrats, allow to cool and bone them out.

In a large pot, add:
- 3 large diced parboiled potatoes
- 2 cans (drained) sliced mushrooms
- 2 cans whole kernel corn
- 2 cans drained limas
- 2 drained cut green beans
- 2 cans stewed tomatoes
- 1 can beef bouillon
- 1 cup red burgandy

Add the meat, stir to mix well, and bring to a boil, stirring to keep from sticking. Take some of the juice, mix with flour to thicken if desired. Makes 15-17, 2 cups sized containers.

Crock Pot Beef/Deer Steak
- 2 steaks
- 1 large Spanish onion
- 1 can beef broth or bouillon
- 1 can sliced mushrooms
- 2 cans Cajun-style stewed tomatoes with Creole seasonings
- 1 cup red burgundy

In crock pot, layer: sliced onion, steak, can tomatoes, mushrooms, onion, second steak, tomatoes, mushrooms. Add bouillon and wine. Cover, cook on low 8-9 hours, or until meat is done.

Crock Pot Corned Beef
- 3-4 pounds corned beef brisket
- Water, 2 bay leaves
- ½ chopped onion
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 head cabbage, cut into wedges (optional)

Put beef in pot, barely cover with water. Add onion, garlic, and bay leaves. Cover, cook on low 10-12 hours.

If cabbage is desired, take cooked beef out of pot, turn on high, put cabbage wedges into the broth. Cover, cook 20-30 minutes or until done.

ANSWER — Here are some crock pot recipes from Anna Martin, Denver, and Dorcas Reiff, Leola, requested by Nancy Kramer, Lebanon.

Add and toss:

Research Designed To Move More Milk

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Thanks to Checkoff-funded research, consumers' demands are being met and quality of milk products is improving. Improved color of fat-free milk, extended code dates on dairy products, and better tasting reduced-fat cheeses are now or will soon become available, thanks to dairy farmer dollars.

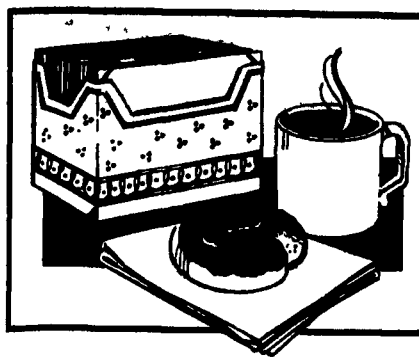
To help increase consumer demand of dairy products, Dairy Management, Inc. (DMI) is coordinating nationwide research to address consumer concerns by creating new product uses and improving existing dairy products.

Consumer demand for fat-free milk, formerly called skim milk, has tripled over the past 12 years. Market research shows that annual consumption of fat-free milk rose from 31.9 pounds in 1995 to 33.7 pounds in 1996. Although many consumers drink fat-free milk regularly, research indicates that even more consumers would reach for fat-free milk if it did not have a "bluish" tint.

In response, DMI drafted researchers at the Western Dairy Center at Utah State University, Logan to develop a cost-effective method of producing a whiter-version of fat-free milk for consumers who want their milk to appear white. Consumers perceive the product to be at least as "creamy" as 2 percent milk.

Freshness and food safety is also a major concern of many concumers. Research indicates that some consumers will refuse anything that does not appear completely safe or fresh. Cornell University researchers have addressed this concern by recently discovering a method of injecting carbon dioxide into fluid milk and cottage cheese to inhibit bacterial growth, extending the product's shelf life. Through combining this process with high-barrier packaging to prevent carbon dioxide loss, processors can triple the shelf life of these milk products.

A third area of research involves developing lowfat cheddar cheese that tastes and can be prepared the same as regular cheddar cheeses. According to cheese market research by the National Cheese Institute, total supermarket sales of cheese exceed $4 billion annually. 15.3 percent of total supermarket cheese sales are in the lowfat and fat-free varieties. With the trend toward lowfat products, consumers will continue to demand more reduced-fat and fat-free cheese options that do not suffer in flavor and cooking ability.



Cook's Question Corner

ANSWER — Lucy Lowe, Claymont, Del., wanted a recipe for a creamy tapioca pudding that stays creamy. Thanks to Mabel Zimmerman for sending a recipe.

Fluffy Tapioca Pudding

1 quart milk
5 tablespoons tapioca (minute)
½ cup sugar, divided
4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook together milk, tapoioca, ½ cup sugar, egg yolks, and salt. Cook to a full boil until thickened. Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add ¼ cup sugar, beating to soft peaks. Leaders Attend Conference

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Sharon Dubs and Ken and Barb Baum recently returned from the Northeast Regional 4-H Leader's Forum in Hagerstown, Md. More than 375 adult 4-H volunteers and teens from 13 states attended the event.

Forum activities centered on the theme, "Volunteers Give 4-H A Lift," and included hands-on workshops, inspirational speakers, and field trips to places of cultural, historical, and educational interest.

John Carrington, a former 4-H educator in Maryland, a magician and a motivational speaker, was the keynoter at the opening banquet. Judy Pugh, a home economics educator in Maryland, gave a presentation that concerned the need for laughter in our daily lives and how good we can feel when we laugh.

The forum featured more than 89 workshops in the areas of using the Internet to attract youth, natural resources, recognition in youth programs, challenge of teamwork, heritage crafts, shooting sports, fishing sports, fundraisers, ethics in 4-H, life skill development and many other topics of interest to those involved in youth development. Among the activities the Cumberland County representatives participated in were workshops on aquatic gardening, building effective teams, photography, the a-maizing-grain, and traveling the 4-H way.

Keep Safety In Mind When Using Portable Kerosene Heaters

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) - The high cost of home heating has increased the popularity of portable kerosene heaters. But these heaters can cause problems if not treated with caution, said a housing expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Improved design has increased the efficiency and safety of most portable kerosene heaters," said Phyllis Adams, associate professor of agricultural and extension education.

"Most new kerosene heaters include several safety features, such as a lower center of gravity to prevent tipping and automatic snuffing devices to extinguish the flame if the heater is knocked over. In the newer appliances, fuel is now wick-fed rather than gravity-or pressure-fed, permitting the fuel tank to be located further from the flame.

"But despite improvements, kerosene heaters still can be serious fire and safety hazards," Adam said. "Kerosene heaters should be installed properly according to manufacturer's directions and used only in safe, well-ventilated area. They should never be used in tightly closed rooms, garages or workshops where adequate ventilation is questionable or where there might be flammable liquids or combustible dust."

If you are considering purchasing a unit, make sure that state and local laws permit the use of unvented portable heaters in your home. Be sure to keep health and safety features in mind when choosing a specific model.

These features can include an Underwriters Laboratory (UL) or another recognized testing laboratory's label or listing, an automatic flame extinguisher in case of heater tips over, an oxygen depletion sensor, a removable fuel tank, and an accurate, easy-to-read fuel gauge.

Modem heaters are designed to burn more efficiently, reducing carbon monoxide emission from incomplete combustion. "However, ventilation still is essential when using these heaters," Adams said. "A minimum of one square-inch opening of a window or door for every 1,000 BTU heat rating on the heater is recommended."

With surface temperatures sometimes exceeding 500 degrees Fahrenheit, kerosene heaters also can cause burns and fires if used carelessly. Adams offers some tips to stay both safe and warm when using these appliances.

"Place your heater on level ground, and keep it away from combustible walls, curtains, carpets and furniture," she said. "Also keep the heater away from high-traffic areas of a room to avoid tripping, contact burns and ignition of clothing. Children and pets should be taught to stay away from the heater.

ANSWER — Mae Stancill, Bel Air, Md., wanted a hymnal with the song that includes these words, "Using my Bible for a road map." Thanks to Ward Boote, Wyalusing, for writing that he doubts the song appears in a hymnal but the song is frequently heard on blue grass music programs such as WAMU-FM (88.5) from American University, Washington, D.C. She can request the song by writing to the station. She may be able to find the song on an album or tape at a local vendor of blue grass music. As a last resort, write to Melvin Goins, 3541 Blue Ribbon Dr., Cattlesburg, KY 41129, which has recorded numerous religious songs and may have it on album or tape.

Another reader sent in the following words but isn't sure if it is complete.

I am using my bible for a road map
It's commandments tell me what to do
Like the 12 disciples on the roadside
And Jesus will take me safely through.
Chorus:
There'll be no detours in heaven
No rough roads along the way
I'm using my bible for a road map
My last stop is in heaven some sweet day.

I am using my bible for a road map
The children of Israel used it too.
They crossed the Red Sea of destruction
And God was there to see them through.

Cope With Holiday Blues

Even though the holidays are supposed to be a time of merriment and joy, it can be a time of sadness. it's not uncommon for some people to feel "blue" or "down" this time of year.

Feeling "down in the dumps" during the holidays can be caused by stress or tension. Knowing there is so much to do to prepare for the holiday shopping, baking, sending cards, etc., can cause people to become overwhelmed and to fell hopeless.

A person can feel down due to a loss whether it's a loss of a loved one due to death, divorce or separation; or loss of a job. Holidays are traditionally a time to spend with loved ones; not having that loved one to share the special times with makes one unhappy and depressed. Losing a job creates tension knowing that this holiday season budgets are tight.

If you find yourself feeling depressed during the holidays, try some of the following coping techniques suggested by Dr. Aaron Beck and his associates at the Institute for Rational Living, Inc. in New York City.

*Try to schedule activities to fill up every hour during the day. Make a list of items you plan to attend to each day. Start with the easiest activity and then progress to the more difficult. Check off the activity as you complete it. This activity record can help with the next suggestion.

*You have a lot going for you, but you may not realize it! As you complete the items on your daily schedule, write down those that you accomplished well with a "W" or star, and those items that brought you enjoyment with an "E" or smilely face. As you review your daily schedules, you'll find yourself becoming increasingly aware of your capabilities.

*If you should happen to get a sad feeling, review your thoughts. Try to remember what has been passing through your mind. These thoughts may have been an "automatic" reaction to something that just happened; for example, receiving a bill in the mail, a daydream, etc. You will probably find these thoughts were very negative and that you believed them.

*Try to correct your thoughts by "answering" each of the negative statements you made to yourself with a more positive, valid statement. You will find that not only are you regarding life more realistically, but also that you will feel better.

*If a particular jog you have to do seems to be very complex and burdensome, try writing down each of the steps that you have to take in order to accomplish the job and then do just one step at a time. Often, problems that seem insolvable can be mastered by breaking them into smaller manageable units.

If you take one or more of the above mentioned steps when you first begin to feel sad or depressed, you will notice that you can change the way you feel. As you work more with changing the way you feel, you'll recognize that YOU, not other people or events, control your feelings.

If however, you feel as though you are getting nowhere, and find yourself becoming increasingly depressed, you may need professional help. Such help may be acquired from your physician or mental health specialist, such as a psychologist, psychiatrist, or marriage and family counselor.

Perhaps you know of someone who is feeling "down in the dumps" this holiday season. Here are a few suggestions for helping a person through a "blue" period.

1. Be a good listener.
2. Encourage the person to talk about his or her feelings.
3. Let the person know that you care and are concerned about what he or she is saying, thinking and feeling.
4. Don't pressure him or her to "Put a smile on" or to "snap out of it." This will only make the person feel worse.
5. Encourage activity such as walking, riding a bicycle, jogging, listening to music, or sharing a cup of coffee with you.
6. Encourage accomplishments by helping him or her set small goals that have immediate success. Examples of such goals are cleaning the kitchen, making a meal, or changing the oil in the car.
7. Be available and let the person know that when he or she needs you, you'll be there.

As regular readers know, we usually run two auctions concurrently on Saturdays. Trains generally fill one room, while toys or sports cards, or railroadiana fills the other. This time, trains fill both rooms. We think that lotsa "normal" folks (non-train collectors) run LGB and other big gauge trains around their Christmas trees in December. We have brand new locomotives, freight & passenger cars, even boxed sets that would look real nice under a "normal" person's Christmas tree. Why not visit our auction rooms and figure out whether you are "normal" or if maybe you are sufficiently loose to become an advanced collector.

INTERNET INFORMATION ON FOOD SAFETY

William B. Roush, Ph.D.
Assoc. Prof.

With the coming holidays, concern about food safety is always heightened. Many questions are posed about safety in cooking and storing holiday foods. As many people now have access to the Internet, there are a number of websites that can offer helpful information about insuring food safety. One common concern during the holiday season is how to roast whole turkeys.

A helpful internet site for this question (sponsored by the Food Safety and Information Service) is:http://www.usda.gov/agency/fsis/turktime.htm

For those who might not yet have internet access, the following recommendations were downloaded directly from this FSIS site:

1. Set the oven temperature no lower than 325 degrees F. Preheating is not necessary.

2. Be sure the turkey is completely thawed. Times are based on fresh or completely thawed frozen birds at a refrigerator temperature of about 40 degrees F or below.

3. Place turkey breast-side up on a flat wire rack in a shallow roasting pan 2 to 2 1/2 inches deep

Some optional steps:

-Tuck wing tips back under shoulders of bird (called "akimbo").

-Add one-half cup water to the bottom of the pan.

-In the beginning, a tent of aluminum foil may be placed loosely over the breast of the turkey for the first 1 to 1 1/2 hours, then removed for browning. Or, a tent of foil may be placed over the turkey after the turkey has reached the desired golden brown.

4. For uniform results, it is recommended to cook stuffing outside the bird. If stuffed, stuff loosely.

It requires additional cooking time for the turkey and stuffing to reach a safe internal temperature (turkey, 180°F; and stuffing, 165°F).

5. For safety and doneness, the internal temperature should be checked with a meat thermometer.

Several types of thermometers are available on the market: Regular, oven-proof; instant read and digital; pop-up timers; and microwave-safe thermometers.

Make sure the thermometer you buy or use is designed for meat and poultry. At the beginning or toward the end of the roasting time an oven-proof thermometer may be placed in the thigh joint of the turkey to check the internal temperature at intervals during the cooking time. Or an instant-read may be used periodically to check the internal temperature during cooking.

After each use, wash the stem section of the thermometer thoroughly in hot, soapy water. Check periodically to see if the "pop-up" temperature indicator device has activated indicating that the bird has reached final temperature for safety and doneness. However, it is also suggested that the temperature be checked with a conventional thermometer in several places.

The temperature must reach a minimum of 180°F in the thigh before removing from the oven. The center of the stuffing should reach 165°F after stand time.

6. Juices should be clear. In the absence of a meat thermometer, pierce the turkey with a fork in several places; juices should be clear with no trace of pink.

7. Let the bird stand 20 minutes before removing stuffing and carving.

The new roasting times are based on the recommendations above. These times are approximate and should always be used in conjunction with a properly placed thermometer.

For additional food safety information about meat, poultry or eggs, call the toll-free USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-(800)-535-4555. It is staffed by home economists, registered dietitians and food technologists from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. ET year round. An extensive selection of food safety recordings can be heard 24 hr a day using a touch-tone phone.

Nutrient Management Act Meeting

YORK (York Co.) — The York County Conservation District and York Cooperative Extension will be hosting a meeting to explain the Nutrient Management Act regulations. The meeting will be Monday December 8, 1997, at 7 PM at the York 4-H Center in Bair Station. The meeting will include how to determine if a farmer or landowner is a Concentrated Animal Operation (CAO), what the procedure is for having a Nutrient Plan written what the role of the Conservation District is and a question and answer session.

The Nutrient Management Act is a statewide law that addresses the management of animal nutrients on certain agricultural operations to reduce nonpoint source pollution to local surface water and groundwater. The regulations address CAOs and farmers who choose to have a voluntary Nutrient Plan written A CAO is defined as greater than 2 animal units per acres of suitable cropland and pasture for spreading manure. An animal unit is 1000 pounds of live animal weight. According to the regulations, if an operation is a CAO, there must be a Nutrient Plan written.

Contact the York Conservation District for more information at (717) 840-7430.

High Quality Knight Spreaders Come From Binkley & Hursts Bros., Inc.

The One Spreader or Slurry That Will Do The Work of 2. Pen Packed or Slurry is not a Problem. Give Us A Call!

Hear what your neighbors have to say!

"Being poultry farmers, we need a spreader that spreads evenly and thin. We also want a spreader that spreads fast. Our Knight 8030 ProTwin Slinger does this. No spreader we have had has ever spread as wide and as even as these spreaders. The 8030 pull spreader works so well, we also purchased a truck mounted 8030."

The CLAAS® Quadrant 1200 square baler—The new standard equipment for commercial operators

CLAAS doesn't have to sell a commercial operator on the advantages he gets from large, densely-packed square bales.

Yes, the Quadrant 1200 delivers the density commercial operators want. Yes, its bales inhibit spoilage by keeping the air out. Yes, they preserve quality because they minimize nutrient loss.

The 1200 also offers the high production capacities you demand. Its 4 ft x 2-1/4 ft x up to 8 ft long bales effectively increase storage space and dramatically increase transport capacities—all at a high productivity rate. And you know what this means to your bottom line

The Quadrant makes easy work of dry hay, haylage and silage crops—whatever you've got. And it bales as much of it as you've got

CLAAS's shaft-driven knotters have earned a worldwide reputation for reliability and low maintenance. Other notable features are its 3-stage pre-chamber, 78" wide pickup, powerful transmission, heavy-duty worm gear, 1000rpm pto, hydraulic density control, capacity for up to 24 balls of sisal or plastic twine, and of course 6 dependable CLAAS shaft-driven knotters

Production capacity Convenient handling and storage. Economical transport. Density and quality A better bottom line

For more information about the Quadrant and how it can meet your commercial needs, contact the CLAAS dealer listed below.

Incidently, CLAAS quality is also available in a smaller Quadrant model designed for dairy operators

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville, NY

Mr. Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994.

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president.

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit. They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration."

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs., and they have a higher protein test as well. They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor.

COW NEAR DEATH Survives with help of

VITAMIX

Stephen E. Stoltzfus of Kinzer, Pa., nearly lost his cow until he started using Vitamix.

Stephen states: "I had a cow that had become so ill the vet told me she would be dead within a few hours, however; I wasn't about to give up. I fed the cow 2 heaping teaspoons of Vitamix every hour for eight hours and within two days she was up walking around like nothing ever happened. This particular cow's problem was that she had a hard delivery and was internally injured from the birthing process. After the use of Vitamix the cow recovered fully, now milks 65 lbs. a day and was bred back after her troubled delivery in just 60 days. Stephen goes on to say, 'I also had a donkey that had a life threatening (terminal), problem and after what I saw Vitamix do for the cow, I used it on the donkey. Now the donkey is very healthy.'

"The most recent incident I've had on the farm was a cow that had a quarter completely drop out. It was seriously infected and she was very ill. I used the same dosage as I used for the cow that had just freshened (2 heaping teaspoons of Vitamix every hour for eight hours). The cows quarter healed up and she now milks fine on three quarters. In all these cases I did it without a vet or antibiotics but, by using Vitamix. The last time I used an antibiotic or a vet was over a year ago and this saves the farm a great deal of money. The usual procedure for using Vitamix would be 2 heaping teaspoons 6 times a day except for in more serious cases."

Vitamix is made by the same people who make Formula M.
Why go looking for a product that Claims to be Similar to Vitamix or Formula M??? When you can buy the original Vitamix and Formula M by calling the number below!!!

BUSINESS ◆ NEWS

It was all smiles from every KTC headquarters employees, and participating VIPs, as they gathered to form the number 25. Framed by the anniversary number is one of five F2260 tractors presented by KTC to hometown municipalities.

Kubota Tractor: 25 Years Of Success

TORRANCE, Calif. — Kubota Tractor Corp. celebrates 25 years of success with its announcement of the donation of five model F2260 commercial mowing tractors.

These will be presented to those municipalities where the company maintains corporate and division facilities. Kubota will donate the tractors, valued at $15,000 each, to commemorate its silver anniversary in the United States.

The tractors will go into service immediately upon delivery.

Torrance, Calif. was the first recipient of the anniversary gift. It serves as host to KTC's national headquarters organization.

"Twenty-five years ago KTC embarked on its challenge to become a recognized brand in the United States. Our success today was enabled by our employees, dealers and customers. Our donation of a tractor celebrates our anniversary and the high esteem we have for our civic partners," said Senior Vice President, Sales and Marketing Robin Killian.

New Product Lineup Brings Technology To Earth

LINCOLN, Neb. — NC+ Hybrids newest product releases are bringing technology down to earth through three new Roundup Ready™ soybean varieties as well as a new corn hybrid lineup with improved tolerance to gray leaf spot.

"With these product additions, our Roundup Ready soybeans include a variety in each major maturity group and our new corn hybrids offer some of the industry's best protection against GLS," said Ted Givens, NC+ research and product development director.

NC+'s newest Roundup Ready soybean varieties include 2A14RR and 2A52RR, which are both excellent performers in no-till situations. The third new Roundup Ready release — 5A45RR — is a determinate-type, medium-height plant with SCN resistance and good emergence.

Other new soybean releases include NC+ 0A77, the first true late group 0 variety offered by NC+, and NC+ 2A77, another excellent choice for no-tillers. The new soybean lineup also features two STS soybean varieties, which are tolerant to sulfonylurea herbicides. These are NC+ 2A55STS and NC+ 3A27STS.

"No matter the situation or need, NC+ has a variety that will perform for nearly every soybean grower. That's one reason why NC+ soybean sales continue to grow — tripling since 1990," said Givens.

Following are descriptions for each new NC+ soybean variety:

• NC+ 0A77: Late Group 0 variety; adapted to northeast South Dakota and west-central Minnesota; works well in all row widths with primary adaptation to narrow rows and no-till drill situations.

• NC+ 2A14RR: Early Grou II; Roundup Ready variety with excellent emergence; adapted to all row widths and no-till situations; widely adapted.

• NC+ 2A52RR: Mid Group II; Roundup Ready variety with characteristics similar to NC+ 2A42; excellent emergence, standability and plant health; excellent no-till performer.

• NC+ 2A77: Late Group II; very strong yields with good iron chlorosis tolerance and excellent no-till drill adaptations.

• NC+ 5A45RR: Mid Group V; Roundup Ready variety with SCN resistance; good emergence and standability.

Many of the 11 new NC+ corn hybrids show good to excellent GLS tolerance ratings, according to Givens. These ratings can be found in the 1997-98 NC+ Product Catalog and Management Guide.

NC+ has also improved its short-season corn lineup. "We have greatly strengthened our early corn lineup, with the addition of five hybrids in the 85 to 105-day maturity range. These new hybrids greatly increase the options available in the western and northern Corn Belt," Givens said.

These newest short-season hybrids include NC+ 0977, NC+ 1487, NC+ 1667, NC+ 2727 and NC+ 3037. New to the mid-season lineup are NC+ 3877, NC+ 5007 and NC+ 5697. On the full-season side, NC+ has added NC+ 6387, NC+ 7237 and a new white hybrid, NC+ 6989W.

Also in this year's corn lineup are two Plus Oil (high oil) hybrids with the new enhanced Top Cross Blend pollinator developed by DuPont's Optimum Quality Grains program. These hybrids, NC+ 4646A-HOC and 5276A-HOC, have higher oil content than previous versions.

Following is more information about each new corn release:

• NC+ 0977: 86 days — earliest corn hybrid ever released by NC+; excellent yields for the maturity; fast drydown.

• NC+ 1487: 97 days — widely adapted hybrid, with excellent yield, early tasseling and fast drydown; good standability and high test weights.

• NC+ 1667: 98 days — good western yield potential; very good drydown and good standability; tassels and black layers early.

• NC+ 2727: 103 days — excellent yield potential; excels under high management situations; drydown and standability are very good.

• NC+ 3037: 105 days — another outstanding western hybrid; superb yields and root strength; excellent test weight.

• NC+ 3877: 108 days — excellent yield potential and good tolerance to gray leaf spot; best adapted to areas east of the Missouri River.

• NC+ 5007: 112 days — widely adapted hybrid with excellent yield potential; rapid drydown and very good tolerance to gray leaf spot.

• NC+ 5697: 114 days — excellent yields, tremendous ear flex; good tolerance to gray leaf spot.

• NC+ 6387: 117 days — excellent yield, fall integrity and gray leaf spot tolerance; area of adaptation includes eastern Kansas, southeast Nebraska, southern Iowa, Missouri and Illinois, as well as the Del-Mar-Va area along the Atlantic coast.

• NC+ 7237: 119 days — very tall robust hybrid with superb top end yield potential; outstanding grain quality and test weights, very good gray leaf spot tolerance; widely adapted.

• NC+ 6989W: 118 days — new white hybrid with excellent yields and standability; good grain quality and outstanding gray leaf spot tolerance.

According to Givens, two of NC+ new sorghum hybrids — NC+ 7B50-K and NC+ 7Y55-K — both offer resistance to Biotype K, the newest greenbug threat. In addition, one of last year's new releases — NC+ 6Y83-I — is also resistant to Biotype K.

"This year's sorghum lineup is the strongest selection of greenbug resistance on the market," said Givens.

Here's a detailed description of each new NC+ sorghum hybrid release:

• NC+ 6C63: Medium maturity, 65 days to mid-bloom; new cream hybrid with outstanding yield potential, excellent yield potential and top-feed value; strong standability and good stress tolerance in dryland environments.

• NC+ 7B50-K: Medium maturity bronze; 70 days to mid-bloom; resistance to greenbug biotypes K, C, E and I; good standability in favorable dryland areas (eastern Kansas, southeast Nebraska and Missouri) and irrigated environments; excellent uniformity and top yield.

• NC+ 7Y55-K: Medium maturity, 70 days to mid-bloom; Biotype K resistant; outstanding bright yellow grain color, moderate plant height; strong standability in both irrigated and dryland environments where 70-day hybrids are used.

• NC+ 8R18: Medium maturity red; 75 days to mid-bloom; top yield performance in high management growing conditions (high rainfall or irrigated); moderately tall with good standability and well suited to the top-yielding areas in the coastal bend of Texas, the Texas Panhandle and southwest Kansas.

Herbicide Approved For Corn

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Monsanto has received Environmental Protection Agency registration for Field Master™ herbicide for use in corn. The new product is formulated to provide superior performance in all tillage systems.

Field Master provides preemergence burndown control of more than 30 annual grassy and broadleaf weeds, and reduces competition from common perennials, as well. The new herbicide also provides season-long control of a broad spectrum of hard-to-control annual grasses and broadleaves, including foxtails, panicums, barnyardgrass, crabgrass, kochia, lambsquarters, pigweeds, velvetleaf and waterhemp.

"Field Master provides the most powerful combination of burndown and residual control in a single herbicide, with no carry over and no change in agronomics," said Jim Zimmer. Monsanto marketing manager for Field Master. "Its performance on heavy or high organic matter soils and in fields with high levels of crop residue make it an ideal choice for corn growers looking for a replacement for Extrazine® II."

Recommended application timing is from seven days prior to planting until just prior to crop emergence. Field Master may be applied in water or 28 percent or 32 percent liquid nitrogen. It may be tank-mixed with 2,4-D, atrazine, Princep™, Bladex®, Roundup® or Harness® herbicides.

For 1998, Field Master will be available in limited quantities in bulk and in 2.5 gallon jugs. Field Master is a restricted use pesticide.

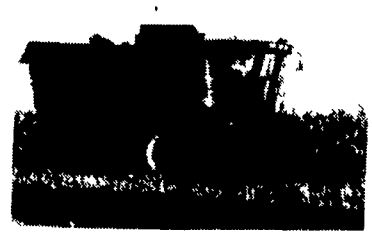
Case Launches New Axial-Flow Combines

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has introduced the new Case IH 2300 Series Axial-Flow® combines, offering improvements in grain quality, harvest efficiency, and operator comfort.

"High quality grain has been what Case has delivered for the last 20 years and the new 2300 Series builds on that commitment," said Kelly Kravig, marketing manager, Crop Harvesting/ Advanced Farming Systems.

New features include increased horsepower in the Case IH 2366 and 2388. The horsepower of the 2366 has been raised to 240 — 12 percent more power. The 2388 now has 280 horsepower, an 8 percent boost. The power curves on the engines have been refined to provide more power reserve across the typical operating range. The 2388 is designed with an advanced turbo-charged and air-to-air aftercooling system that builds an additional 12 horsepower boost beyond rated horsepower. This provides the operator with additional power in tough threshing conditions.

Also new are automatic cab climate control features, which give the operator the option of manual vs. automatic temperature control, and a three-position rocker switch with rotary controls for fan speed and temperature settings. The exclusive climate control feature enables the operator to hold the cab temperature constant, even under changing conditions. In early morning or late afternoon conditions when the operator is driving into the sun, the cab temperatures can change dramatically. Three temperature sensors carefully placed in the cab connstantly monitor cab temperature and automatically adjust it, keeping the operator comfortable and more alert.



The 2388 is the largest of three new Case IH Axial-Flow® combines. Increased horsepower in the 2366 and 2388 combines means increased productivity. The 2366 now is rated at 240 hp and the 2388 at 280 hp. Other improvements enhance the unique benefits of Axial-Flow combine rotary technology, including superior grain quality and harvesting efficiency.

A tailings monitor is now standard on all combines. It uses an electronic sensor in the tailings auger, providing an in-cab display. The result, says Kravig, "is improved productivity through better sieve adjustment, allowing the operator to monitor the tailings volume, to prevent plugging of the elevator and provide better grain quality by not running an excessive volume of tailings."

Another option is flotation tires, which reduce soil compaction and improve traction under wet conditions. New 68-50.00 x 32 HF3 flotation tires provide 1730 square inches of contact area per tire. Soil compaction is minimized and flotation in adverse conditions is increased.

The 2300 Series, Kravig adds, also is available with the factory-installed Advanced Farming Systems technology, which uses satellites or ground-based beacon signals to map variability in crop yields and provides critical information for managing the farm.

New for 1998 is a Case IH "AFS Universal Receiver." Both GPS (global positioning) and DGPS (differential global positioning) signals are received by a single antenna that is positioned on the center of the combine cab toward the front. The new receiver is capable of receiving beacon signals which are provided at no cost by the U.S. Coast Guard, or the receiver can be used with the Omnistar satellite which operates via a yearly subscription service.

Dairy Futures Conference Comes To State College

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Dairy producers, processors, distributors, and other professionals in dairy-related businesses can get a glimpse into the economic future of the dairy industry at the 1997 Pennsylvania Dairy Futures Conference, Dec. 10-11 here at the Days Inn Penn State.

The two-day program begins at 11:30 a.m. with a luncheon, followed by a series of presentations from dairy experts. Bill Eby, editor of the Kiplinger Agricultural Newsletter, will talk on "Dairy Policy in the New Millennium — A View from Washington." Robert Yonkers, assistant professor of agricultural economics in Penn State's College of Agriculture Sciences, will speak on "State and National Trends and Tools for Risk Management."

The individual presentations will be followed by miniprofiles of successful Pennsylvania dairy producers, and by a brief annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders, a newly formed group that is sponsoring the conference. Other sponsors include Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science and the Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry.

After dinner, David Hettinga, vice president of corporate research for Land O'Lakes, Inc., will speak on "Designing Future Dairy Products."

On Dec. 1, the conference will open with remarks by Samuel E. Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, followed by two presentations by dairy experts. The first presentation, "Food Industry Trends: Evolution and Revolution," features John Lord, chair of the Department of Food and Marketing in the College of Business Administration at St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia. The final speaker will be Monte Hemenover, director of industry affairs for Protiva, a division of Monsanto. His topic is "A Prospective on the Future of the Dairy Industry."

The registration fee is $85 and checks should be made payable to Pa. Dairy Stakeholders. Register immediately! Checks and completed registration forms should be mailed to N. Alan Bair, Penn State Harrisburg, 777 West Harrisburg Pike, Middletown, PA 17057. For more information or to receive a registration form, call Alan Bair at (717) 948-6328. Rooms are being held at the Days Inn Penn State. Call (800) 325-2525 to make a room reservation.

Certified Hereford Beef Named

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Certified Hereford Beef® (CHB) was judged "Best Restaurant Beef in America" and "Best Supermarket Beef in America" for 1998 by the American Tasting Institute (ATI). This marks the second consecutive year CHB has received ATI's Best Restaurant Beef designation.

ATI, a national fraternity of professional chefs, conducts blind judging tests of consumer and food service products based on their quality and practical use for the consumer or professional chef.

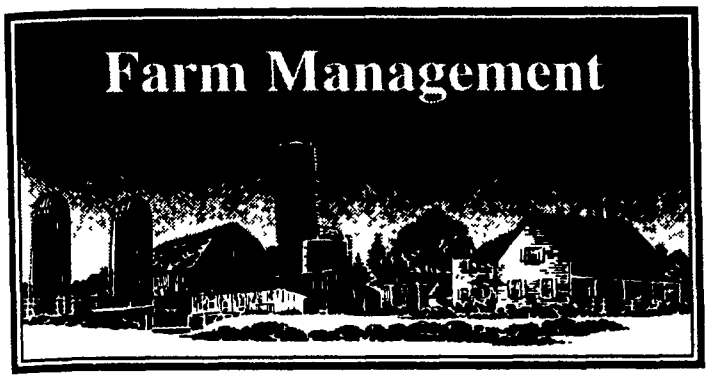
"Winning this year's further demonstrates what a growing number of consumers have also discovered: Certified Hereford Beef products are consistently tender and flavorful," said Rob Ames, American Hereford Association head of product marketing. "It's a tremendous honor for Hereford producers and CHB's marketing arm — Red Oak Farms."

The American Tasting Institute will award the CHB program with both honors during its American Gold Medal Food and Beverage Awards ceremony held each year at Carnegie Hall in New York.

CHB is a branded beef program established by the American Hereford Association in 1994 with the three-fold mission of satisfying consumer demand for tender, great-tasting beef; enhancing the marketing opportunities of retailers, restauranteurs, food service distributors and processors; and increasing the demand for commercial Hereford cattle.



USING RECORDS FOR MANAGEMENT DECISIONS

Roland P. Freund
Regional Farm Management Agent
Penn State Cooperative Extension

There are many systems which can be used to gather information for farm tax accounting. But no record system provides complete information for financial records, business analysis and planning purposes unless it includes:

- Cash-flow checks - to ensure that all income and expenses are properly accounted for.
- Year-end inventories and balance sheets.
- Physical commodities produced (bushels of apples, pounds of milk, etc.)
- Physical units of production for each enterprise (acres of peaches, number of cows, broilers finished, etc.)
- Physical units of key inputs (bushels of feed grains, tons of protein commodities, etc.)

With accurate balance sheets it is possible to make the inventory and capital adjustments necessary to prepare an income statement on the accrual basis. The other factors from the foundation for enterprise analysis and planning. Past performance is the starting point for planning the future direction of the business.

Year-end Analysis

The basic "Income minus Expense equal Net Cash" figures can hide more than they reveal and are often misleading unless other information is considered. From the balance sheets for the beginning and the end of the year, changes in inventories, changes in accounts receivable and changes in dealer debt need to be calculated to give the accrual cash income. But changes also occur in capital accounts such as breeding animals and equipment depreciation which must be included to arrive at Net Farm Income. This is the key profitability figure which is used for the calculation of the ratios which are commonly used to evaluate business performance.

A good farm analysis system will accumulate information over a number of years to demonstrate trends in profitability, liquidity and solvency. The ultimate measure of business progress is the Net Worth Change per year.

Enterprise Analysis

Some records and accounting systems make it possible to allocate income and expense items to individual enterprises, and then use this information to generate statements for each enterprise. The difficulty with these systems is to decide where to draw the line, or how to allocate something like diesel fuel or each machine repair to each specific crop. An alternative approach is to use the physical records of products and inputs, plus the financial records to reconstruct, as clearly as we can, a picture of what happened with each enterprise for the year.

Carefully examining each enterprise enables us to identify items where cost control measures need to be taken. Frequently crop fertilizer and chemical expenses, and livestock feed bills are the bandits that will rob our farms blind unless managers focus on keeping them under control.

Accurate enterprise budgets, based upon enterprise analysis, are the building blocks for farm planning. They are used to develop strategic plans and cash-flow projections. The plans and the projections are only going to be as accurate as the assumptions used in the enterprise budgets which create them.

Strategic Planning

Anybody who plans major changes in the business needs to evaluate a number of alternatives before deciding what to do. The opinions of family, friends, business people and consultants ALL need to be evaluated and compared before any of their ideas are adopted. The tool to do this is the long-range budget. It enables us to evaluate the financial and physical impacts of many different courses of action and see what impact each alternative will have on labor requirements, debt load, business profitability, cash flow, and net worth.

The long-range budget uses average projections to give managers an indication of what things would be like once the changes are in place and the operation is ticking along at a new level. It is the process which we use to decide which ball-park we want to be in and what things might be like if we get there. It does nothing to tell us how to get there. For that we need to construct a month by month cash flow projection.

Cash-Flow Planning

In tight financial times, and when major changes are made to a business, it is vital that a month-by-month cash flow projection is prepared. This must be based on future production parameters, number of acres harvested, cows milking, hogs finished each month, as well as the growing livestock and crops which will receive inputs each month.

It needs to be prepared with accurate opening invenories of feed and inputs on hand, so that the plan can use these before more feed etc. is purchased. If an accurate and realistic projection of physical activities is represented in the cash-flow plan, it will provide a good indication of operating cash inflows and outflows, and the resulting shortfalls and surpluses.

But it is also vital to include the capital investments, the new borrowings and the new (as well as the old) debt payments. And don't forget the family or partnership withdrawals.

Now we are starting to talk serious pencil pushing and pocket calculator punching! But, not to worry, there is a great software package available to us which, if we are patient enough and accurate enough with our inputs, will furnish us with a complete analysis and set of planning documents as outlined above.

Finpack

For the price of a little more than one ton of feed, a farm manager can install the personal version of Finpack on the farm computer. Extension has been using this software for years. Farmers will benefit most from this program by doing enterprise analysis and then incorporating this information into complete and realistic cash-flow plans.

In these times of rapidly fluctuating commodity prices and tighter profit margins, it is essential that every manager has the capacity to easily and regularly update financial projections. Finpack is the tool to do that superbly.

For more information or a demonstration, contact your local extension farm management agent, or Roland Freund at (717) 240-6500. To purchase contact University of Minnesota's Center for Farm Financial Management at (800) 234-1111 or your local vendor.

Land O'Lakes Requests PMMB Hearings

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Land O'Lakes requested and was granted two emergency hearings through the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board to discuss the ramifications of a recent court ruling banning Class I differentials in 28 federal orders, including the Northeast.

The first hearing, set for Dec. 2 will address the November pay price for Pennsylvania milk producers. The second hearing is scheduled for Dec. 16 and 17 to review the possible pooling of the Class I differential throughout the state and to set a December producer price.

Earlier this month, Judge Doty of the Fourth U.S. District Court of Minnesota issued an order stating that the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture had no authority in setting Class I prices. The decision does not affect October milk prices, however, prices for November and beyond are in question.

"We commend the PMMB for scheduling an expedited hearing to address the issues for Pennsylvania producers and processors arising from Judge Doty's decision," said Dennis J. Schad, manager of regulatory affairs for Land O'Lakes. "We hope the Court will issue a stay, pending appeal, and allow the issue to be addressed through the current federal order reform process."

According to Schad, the PMMB hearings would be called off if Judge Dory's decision is stayed. Last week, the U.S. Department of Agriculture requested a stay and appeal of the judge's order. If the stay is granted, the USDA will be able to enforce Class I prices beyond October.

"This is a critical issue for dairy farmers," Schad said. "In Northeast markets alone, approximately $1.20 per hundredweight per month is generated by Class I differentials."

Land O'Lakes is a national food and agricultural cooperative owned by farmers, ranchers and member cooperatives supplying 300,000 farmers, serves more than 11,000 direct producer members, and manufactures and markets a wide variety of food products.

PDA Headquarters For State Farm-City Celebration

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An estimated 500 elementary aged students and an additional uncounted number of older children and adults participated Tuesday in the first state Farm-City Day celebration held at the state Department of Agriculture (PDA).

There have been other state Farm-City programs that have used PDA facilities and toured different portions of the operations, but to knowledge, it is the first time the entire department was involved in the event, and the first time such a type of event was held at the PDA headquarters building in Harrisburg.

The scene was apparently purposefully reminiscent of a county fair, with animals, educational displays and entertainment.

The stands and booths and rides took up the parking lot in front of the PDA building, the front steps and open air entrance, the building's large lobby, a portion of the building, and the headquarters lawn adjacent to the parking lot.

From 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., the scene at the PDA building contained all those people and a ferris wheel, a midway ride of rotating frogs, carriage rides, a pumpkin-decorating area with youth getting pumpkins to take home, a seed and grain identification booth, an agricultural knowledge computer game in the Pa. Statistics Service office, a petting zoo in a tent set up by the Gifford Pinchot FFA Chapter, a demonstration of border collies and their abilities to herd sheep, commodity group displays, free hot dogs, free candy apples, Hershey Chocolate characters walking around greeting children, Jimbo the Clown, balloons from the Pa. Beef Council, PDA bureau displays, coloring books, fish in aquariums by the Pa. Aquaculture Association, crafts demonstrations by the Pa. Lamb and Wool Association, the giant Turkey Hill display cow, commodity royalty, farm equipment, draft horses, carriage rides, beef calves, oxen, Crystal Marie in white cowboy hat (a young Pennsylvania girl who performs singing country music at county fairs), etc.

Elementary school teachers in the immediate and mid-state region were invited to bring their students to the festivities. Also invited were teachers who have participated in the Ag in the Classroom Program, as well as those with homeschooled students.

The response was strongly positive. While an official poll wasn't taken, all who commented expressed almost disbelief that something so effective and fun could have been put together and staged so well, and, no offense, but by PDA.

Among the volunteers who responded quickly to help support the event, was Pat Derk of Harrisburg, a member of the Lamb and Wool Producers, who said she received a call and called a friend to also come help support the commodity group's display.

Derk is a retired teacher who continues to teach on a substitute basis. She got a call to teach Tuesday, but she said she couldn't pass up the opportunity to help teach students at the Farm-City event.

"I think it's wonderful. I'm really impressed with the exhibits, and the number of people who attended," she said. "The interest from the students was great," adding that she predicts the event will grow.

Kenneth and Janet Winebark of Myerstown received a phone call last week from PDA because beef cattle were still needed for the event. Their children, Brandon and Janine had two beef calves that the youth have been working with as a hobby, and they decided to bring the Maine Anjou crossbred calves to help support the program.

"This is really wonderful," Janet said. "Everybody is having a good time and there is so much to see." She and Kenneth said they were glad to be able to help support the event.

Peg Lynch of Turbotville said she and her husband Allan asked to be involved. She is a teacher who participated in the Ag in the Classroom Program and received an invitation to bring students. She said she thought to herself, "We should be involved in that."

"This is great. I got a flier at school about bringing a class down here. I brought (the flier) home and said (to Allan), I would like to be part of this."

In essence, Peg said her goal is to share their agricultural interest with others, especially youth, because their agricultural interest is rewarding, wholesome, healthy and fun, and youth are generally receptive to those things.

What youth learn now they can carry into adulthood, and if not help teach and influence others, at least be better prepared to understand the fundementals of such issues and make better decisions.

She and Allan own eight Border Collies and show them competitively in herding contests. She explained to some of the bystanders that it takes years and continual training to develop a herding dog to full potential. They start with verbal commands and then teach to dogs to respond to different whistle patterns that correspond to the verbal commands. She said competitive dogs can be in the teens.

They also own about 55 head of Katahdin sheep that are used to train herding dogs. The couple travels all over the North East competing with their dogs from April through the end of October every year. During the offseason, the dogs are taken to various nursing homes and other care facilities where they are used in pet therapy.

They had three sheep in a fenced-in area in the PDA lawn

The theme of the state Farm-City Week program this year is "Farm City Week: A story to be told, lessons to be learned." From the look on these students faces, it doesn't hurt that at Farm City Day at PDA in Harrisburg fun, curiosity and smiles were nurtured as well.

From the left, state Auditor General Bob Casey Jr. stands with young country singer Crystal Marie and state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr., while in the background some of the 500 students attending hold balloons and carry bags with commodity information and fun publications while looking at some of the horses and animals on display.

and demonstrated how one Border Collie can respond precisely to a variety of different whistle commands and move the sheep around in controlled movements, without spooking the animals or making them nervous.

"We had a ball today," Peg said.

The objective of all of the Farm-City observation is to create an awareness and expose people to more of the world that surrounds them than what they can get through a television.

The specific goal of the state Farm-City Day event was to expose today's youth to a variety of agricultural activities, crafts and culture that are part of the real world people and systems that provide food and fiber and shelter.

The different groups of students and their teachers were escorted by one or two of a number of state and county dairy princesses, such as Erica Davis and Becky Rappert of Berks County, Jodi Musser from the SUN Area, state Princess Nichole Meabon, Lancaster County Alternate Princess Megan Good, as well as others.

The dairy princesses took their charges up the steps through the many different booths and displays, to get their hot dog, inside to the lobby booths, down into the basement area to the Pa. Ag Statistics Service area, through a seed identification and outside to a pumpkin patch and petting zoo, and the border collie demonstration area.

After finishing with the various livestock and horses, the youth were allowed to get their candy apple and enjoy the amusement rides, at the teacher's discretion.

State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. said he tasked each of his bureaus to come up with something for the event and every bureau was involved — from market development to weights and measures.

In fact, the scale on display in the PDA lobby has probably never received as much attention or use at one time as it got from the students and adults.

Secretary Hayes was on hand to help with the program, and welcome various legislators and government officials who also dropped by to visit the event. He also helped greet the students and sometimes provided them with the cue to have fun and enjoy themselves, and learn.

The slogan for the day was Hayes' creation: "Farm-City Day. A Story To Be Told, Lessons to Be Learned."

It was printed on a banner and the banner hung and draped across the front of the PDA building.

Hayes said the educational effort and theme was very intentional.

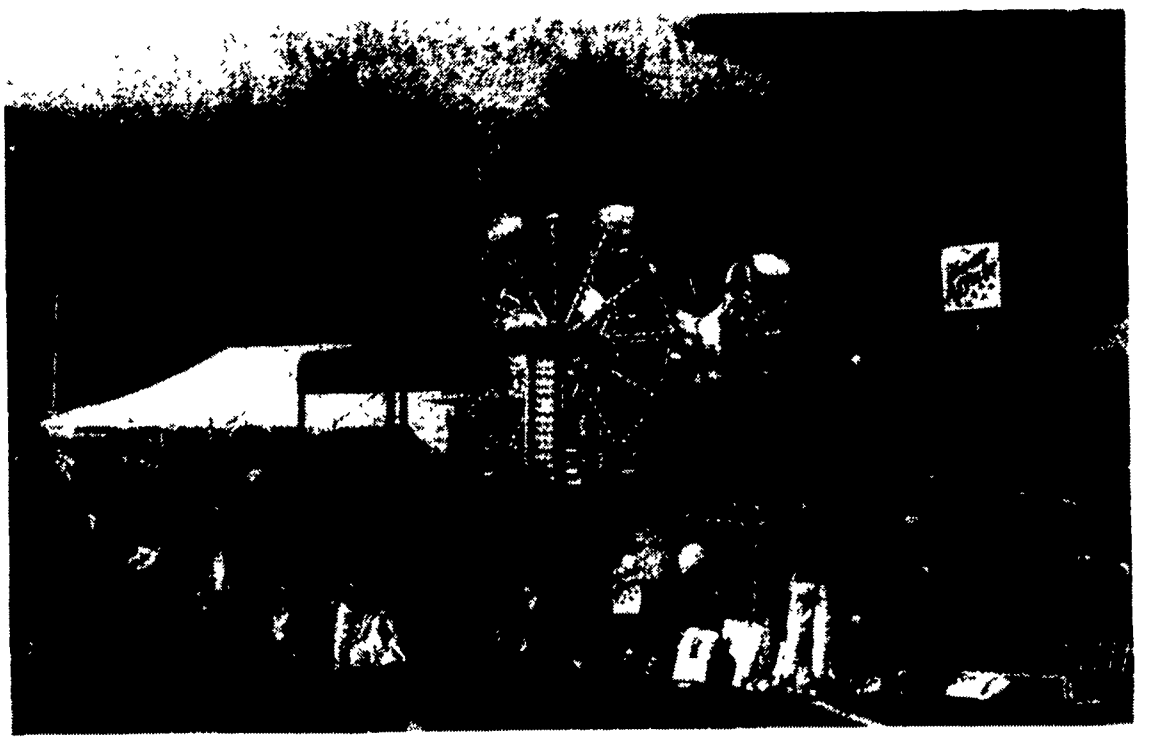
Changes in state law now put responsibility for food safety in school cafeterias with the Department of Agriculture.

Recently, while outlining a draft action plan for the department, Hayes said that the additional tasking of the department with the school cafeteria safety should not be seen as a burden, but as an opportunity to provide outreach and education where it can do some good.

In fact, he had requested and Gov. Tom Ridge proclaimed, October 1997 as school food safety month.

Over a three-week period, Secretary Hayes and representatives from the state's various agricultural commodity promotion groups toured the state visiting schools to meet with staff, discuss safety issues and concerns, and to provide on-site, first-hand education.

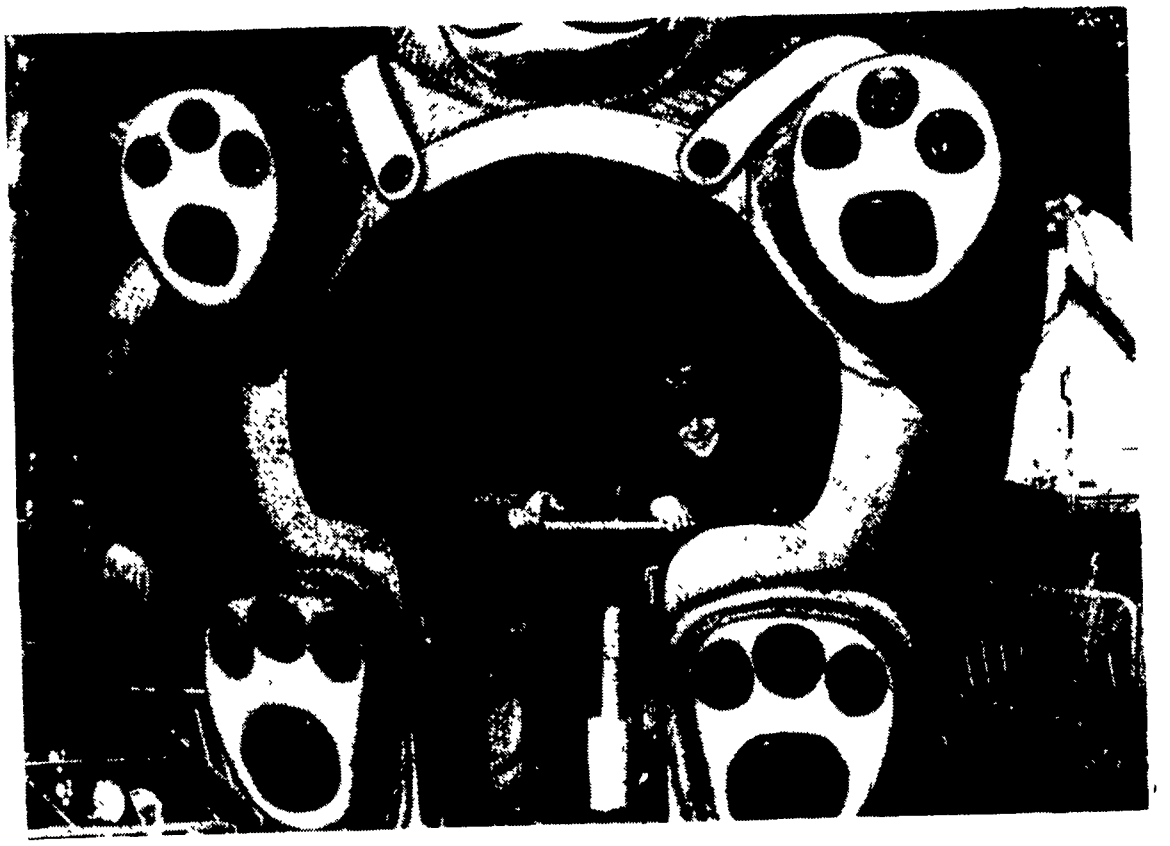
(Turn to Page D8)



After touring all the exhibits and demonstrations, teachers were given the option of allowing their students to enjoy some carnival rides and get a free candy apple.

This Border Collie named McDuff brings a flock of three sheep back around to the right. Allan Lynch, McDuff's master, though barely visible standing back by the open-air entrance to the state Agriculture Department building, controls the movements through whistle commands.

State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. demonstrates a Pennsylvania-produced skill toy for youth called the Rock'n Wave to encourage others to give it a try.



Inside the belly of a fiberglass honeybear, these four students of Highland Elementary School in Camphill get ready for the spinning ride. From the left is Ross Kocher, Joey Metz, Brandon Ward, and Jason Traino.

Draft horses almost always attract attention. Here volunteers talk with state officials and other curious adults who visited the PDA Farm City Day open house event.

Standing in front of the Pennsylvania Aquaculture Association booth, Leslie Cline is surrounded by elementary school youth eager to receive a balloon from the Pa. Beef Council.

From the left, Eugenia Moten with the Pa. Department of Agriculture Bureau of Market Development talks to students and their teacher at a booth the bureau designed for kids. She also hands out coloring books.

Volunteers talk to students and visitors to the Pennsylvania Hardwood Council booth in the lobby of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture building.

On the right, volunteering for the Pa. Sheep and Wool Growers Association, Molly Ulsh demonstrates to a teacher and her students some hand crafts with wool. In the background is part of a display area about integrated pest management with displays of some insects, the damages they can cause, and controls.

Leslie Cline, with the Pa. Beef Council, was blowing up and handing out balloons. She had been a part of the commodity promotion entourage with Hayes on the visits to the different schools in cities such as Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona, Fayetteville and Harrisburg.

She said she was impressed with the success of the visits to the schools, and the response from the staff and students. Participating in the program again next year is something the Beef Council intends to do, she said.

She also said that she is looking forward to next year's Farm-City Day event.

DIRECT-X-PRESS™ SYSTEM

NEW BELT FEEDERS & CONVEYORS

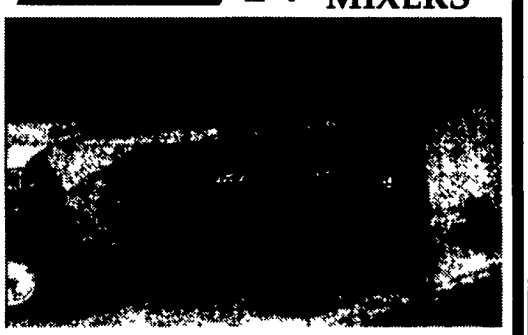
Big Capacity Delivery With All The Advantages Of Dependable, Efficient, Low Profile Direct Drive Design!

That's what farmers really appreciate about the new Jamesway family of Direct-X-Press Feeders and Conveyors. All models feature a dependable and efficient heavy duty industrial drive, with enclosed oil bath and standard 1, 2 or 3 H.P. C-laced motors. Our direct drive design eliminates pulleys, jackshafts, sprockets chains, V-belts and shields, the low profile motor and drive can be mounted on either side for added installation versatility.

ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.
